Prevue Of Busy Cafeteria Season To Come, As Guests Enjoy Menu

The scene at Dallas High School cafeteria Thursday noon was a prevue of what may be expected every week day, beginning next Wednesday, when high school students line up for their first meal.

The 125 luncheon guests were lost in the spacious dining room, scattered about the long tables with their attached coral colored seats. Tables, the guests were told, could be folded up and arranged around the wall, their little round seats still attached, if the room needs to be used at any time for other purposes.

Cafeteria workers got a briefing from representatives of Concord Supply in use of the kitchen equipment, before actual preparation of the meal.

Mrs. Catherine Birth, supervisor of Home Economics for Luzerne County, instructed.

Handling the actual cooking were Mary Kamor and Margaret Morgan, head cooks, assisted by Mrs. Norma Knecht, Irene Moore, Lucy Morgan, Naomi Prynn, Dorothy Sisco, Doris K. Sutton, Helen Veitch, Ellen Shaffer, and Florence Wilson.

The menu featured a meat loaf which drew a good many comments from wives of school board members. "Wonder if we could get the recipe," was a stage whisper heard at almost every table.

Vegetables, more than would normally be served for any one meal, gave the new cookers a workout. It was a delightful color combination, spinach, sliced carrots, parsley potatoes, broccoli, green beans.

Corn muffins lacking the confining influence of muffin tins, spread flat on cookie sheets. Coffee is something which will not be served at student meals, but everybody had his coffee on Thursday. Dessert.

stated Tom Jenkins, was something he'd been dreaming up all summer in his spare time. (The cafeteria program is under Mr. Jenkins' control, one of his duties as assistant principal.)

Superintendent Dr. Robert Mellman blew the whistle for the guests to fall in line. Luncheon was served on plastic trays divided into sections. Everybody in the building at the time, was invited to have lunch.

A pigeon walked in from the cobble patio, and was shoed out by John Stahl. "Just wait till the kids start scattering crumbs," one school board member whispered to his wife, "this will be a pigeon-promenade."

Outside in the parking lot to the rear, Leon Emmanuel demonstrated his transportation systems for the hot food trolleys which will service the rest of the schools, conveying food in insulated and preheated containers to Dallas Junior High School, Trucksville, Shavertown, Dallas Borough and Westmoreland buildings.

The truck, painted blue and white, Dallas school colors, is the conventional one-ton model. Still to be worked out are mechanics of arranging for a delivery ramp at each building, none of which are alike. The wheeled portable units weigh a good bit when loaded.

The next and final work-out for the cafeteria staff before going into heavy production, is slated for next Tuesday, when teachers, and school board members if they wish, will be served as part of the program arranged for the day before school opens for the fall season.

Until 1870 presses contained no device for folding newspapers as newspaper boys had to fold the papers themselves before starting their routes.
