Lake-Lehman PTA Meets On Monday

Willis Gentile, president of the Lehman Jackson Ross P. T. A. will preside at the first meeting at Lehman Building on Monday night at 8.

Mr. Gentile, a resident of Oak Hill, believes that this meeting, being so close to the opening of school, will be a fine time for parents to meet teachers and also the School Board. Mr. Anthony Marchakitus will introduce High School teachers, Mr. Robert Bellas will introduce Lehman, Ross Elementary teachers and Mr. Lester Squier will introduce the School Board.

Mr. Gentile will introduce P. T. A. officers and executive board. Assisting Mr. Gentile this year are Royal Cup, 1st Vice President; Mrs. Richard Stroud, 2nd Vice President; Mrs. Myron Moss, 3rd Vice President and Ross Twp. representative Mrs. Avis Kocher - secretary; Miss Hanna Culp - treasurer; By-Laws - Atty Jonathan Valentine; Ways and Means - Mrs. Mark Grim; Publicity - Mrs. Thomas Brown; Research and Survey - Mr. John Kenyon, Mrs. Earl Payne; Curriculum - John Bradovchak; Safety and Transportation - Gilbert Tough.

The vacationing family, the bus driver, the commuting suburbanite, the farmer delivering his produce to market — each will find a variety of advantages in the safe, convenient route provided by the Penn-Can.

Incorporating the most modern features of highway design and construction, the Penn-Can will eventually replace U. S. Route 11 and 611. Much of U. S. 11 is hazardous and winding, and some portions are as narrow as 20 feet.

To date, some 40 miles of the expressway are in use in Pennsylvania. A 32-mile section between the New York State line and State Route 107 in Lackawanna County was opened to traffic August 17. A three-mile section of the Scranton Bypass between North Scranton and the O'Neill Highway is completed, and the adjoining section at Dunmore may be opened to traffic this fall. South of Stroudsburg, a three-mile portion of the road is open to traffic.

The Penn-Can is part of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, 41,000 miles of modern roads which, when completed, will provide direct connections between practically all major U. S. cities.

The Penn-Can is composed of portions of Interstate Routes 81, 81-S, and 80. It eventually will connect New York City and the Canadian border, passing through northeastern Pennsylvania and northern New Jersey. In New York, Interstate 81 is known as the Empire Stateway.

The Penn-Can in Pennsylvania will pay 90 per cent and the state will cost an estimated $90,000,000 of which the Federal Government will pay ten percent.

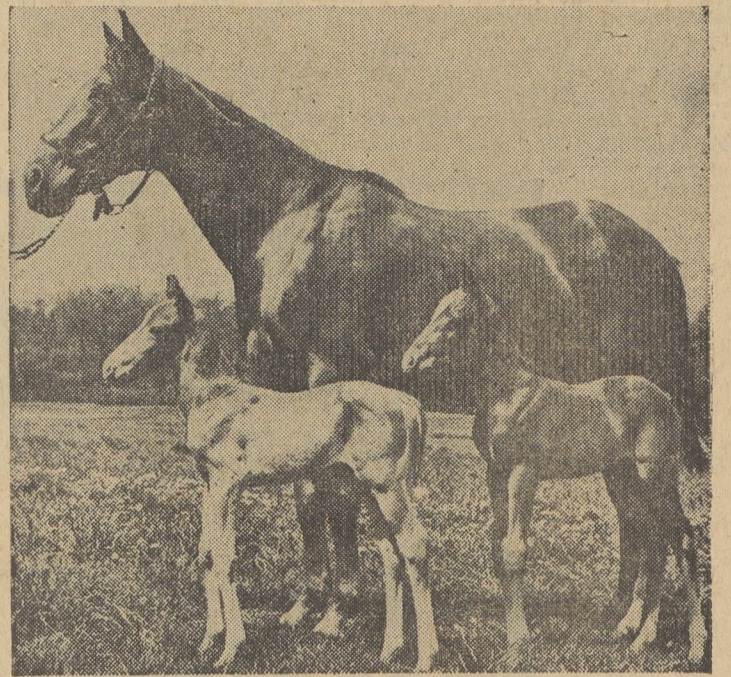

Most important to the motorist are the safety factors incorporated in the Penn-Can. According to the American Association of State Highway Officials, the traveling American is two and one-half times safer from death, injury, and accidents on fully limited access roads such as the Penn-Can than on comparable highways without access control, such as present U. S. 11.

The Penn-Can, typical of highways being built under the National system, will have two 24 foot wide lanes, separated by a 60 foot wide earth divider, widest on the present Pennsylvania highway system.

The 60 feet lane divider and split level lanes — that is, lanes constructed on different levels, depending on land contours — provide an added safety feature by reducing the possibility of "highway hypnosis" and lessening the blinding effects of headlights of oncoming traffic. Split level lanes provide variation of scenery for the motorist. The 60 feet wide lane divider helps reduce head-on crashes.

Limited access control on the Penn-Can insures safer accommodation of greater volumes of traffic and allows higher rates of speed. Limited access eliminates the dan-

Live Twin Foals at University Farm

Peaches, Quarterhorse broodmare at the Pennsylvania State University Agricultural Experiment Station, attained a remarkable record when she gave birth to live twin foals last year. Twins occur rarely in horses and live twins perhaps once in 20
