Bishop Corson To Speak Monday In Scranton To Church Leaders

More than 100 leaders of local Methodist churches of the Back Mountain will attend a special series of meetings called for next Monday in Elm Park Methodist Church, Scranton, by the resident Bishop, the Rev. Dr. Fred P. Corson. This will be Bishop Corson's first opportunity to meet with local church leaders since his recent election to presidency of the World Methodist Council. He has called this meeting in order to share his inspiration and concern for strengthening of the local church in evangelism, education, missions, finance, and lay activities.

At the first session, scheduled for

3 p.m., the Bishop will present matters relating to the 1962 Evangelistic Emphasis, financial goals of local churches, and opportunities to participate in special gifts called Advance Specials. At the dinner which follows at 5:30 p.m., a layman will speak on "What It Means to Belong to the Church." At the evening session, Bishop Corson will address the gathering and conclude with the Wesley Covenant Service.

Local church leaders will include lay leaders, lay members of the Annual Conference, chairmen of commissions, presidents of the W.S.C.S., Methodist Men, and MYF, pastors and their wives.
