

New Ambulance Association May Be Formed

Northmoreland And Franklin Residents Will Meet Tonight

As a follow-up to a preliminary meeting held two weeks ago, citizens of Franklin and Northmoreland Townships will meet tonight at the former Centermoreland school house to further discuss the formation of an Ambulance Association and purchase of an ambulance to service their area.

It isn't every day you can buy a Cadillac ambulance for $500. Franklin and Northmoreland townships need an ambulance and Dallas has one to sell.

These townships are faced with alternatives of employing a commercial ambulance at a time of need or getting one of their own.

Kingston and Dallas townships can not service other townships. That is how it came about that a meeting was called for Tuesday night of last week at Orange community hall for all who are interested in forming an ambulance association.

On short notice eighteen men turned out from the two townships. Don Roberts convened the meeting and called on Martin Porter, president of Kingston Township Ambulance Association, to describe the beginnings of the movement in that area.

He told of the help given by the women in soliciting funds and a used ambulance was purchased. Then the Red Cross offered courses in ambulance techniques and the State Police briefed the men on problems of driving the ambulance. Later on the township was able to buy a new machine.

Donald Bulford, president of the Dallas Ambulance Association, also shared experiences in getting ambulance service established in the Dallas community.

Nobody raised any opposition to forming an association and purchasing an ambulance. It was recognized that not only will money be needed but also man power for operating the ambulance in answering calls either day or night. It will require three men on each ambulance trip.

After much friendly discussion it was felt that there should be more publicity and more people interested in the project. It was agreed not to proceed to the organization then but to call a second meeting in the near future definitely for the purpose of organizing an ambulance association.

Accordingly the date was set for Thursday night October 19 at 8 at the former school house in Centermoreland. All people in both Franklin and Northmoreland townships are invited to attend. "You may be the next to need an ambulance!"

Those attending were: Don Roberts, Robert N. Jones, George Schollenberger, Byron Kester, Theodore McHenry, John Zarno, Edward Dorrance, Frank Zamock, William H. Carey, Elmer Evans, John Fowler, Fred Dymond Jr., Paul H. Kunkle, James Derr, Malcolm Baird, J. Edwin Lintern, Joseph M. Perry Jr., Nelson J. Dymond. In addition Martin Porter and Vought Long represented the Kingston Township Ambulance Association, and Donald Bulford and Edwin Roth represented the Dallas Ambulance Association.

Daily Ministrations Of Visiting Nurses — A Comfort To All Of Us

To most all of us, a visiting nurse in her daily travels, is a comforting sight. Needless to say, her visit is greatly appreciated . . . and in 1960 alone, 27,306 such visits were made by the staff of Wyoming Valley Visiting Nurse Association.

Giving skilled nursing care to the sick in their homes is of prime importance to the visiting nurses . . . in addition to teaching personal hygiene, disease prevention, operation and supervision of baby health stations, and pre-school clinics where mothers may learn to keep their little ones healthy.

A class for expectant mothers is another important service of the Association. To teach the Hygiene of Pregnancy, preparing the mother for the coming of the new baby, newborn care demonstration, and preparation of a formula. The objective is happier parenthood through better preparation and understanding.

These classes cover six weeks, every Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 3:30, in the Association's rooms at Kirby Memorial Health Center, 71 North Franklin Street. Classes have been conducted for six years.

The Visiting Nurse Association also operates the follow-up and health care of newborn babies through Child Health Clinics located in thirteen areas, Edwardsville, Larksville, Georgetown, Kingston, Luzerne, Ashley, Shavertown, Hanover Township, Plymouth, Heights, Swoyersville, Wyoming Valley Hospital and General Hospital.

The Association covers an area of 264 square miles using eleven automobiles mainly for use in outlying areas. These include halfway between Harvey's Lake and Noxen, Shavertown, Plains, Parsons, as far as Stoddardsville, all of Fairview Township, Plymouth Township, and up to the Wyoming County Line. One automobile is made available to the Association's physical therapist. Sixteen nurses and one practical nurse comprise the staff, each of whom is a graduate medical nurse and a member of the American Nurse Association, Association operating with a director, an assistant director, an educational director, three supervisors, one assistant supervisor, a physical therapist, and twenty-five staff nurses.

A breakdown of the 27,306 visits made during 1960, shows the following categories and number of patients: Medical 766 (121 patients); Surgical 478 (68 patients); Communicable Diseases — Tuberculosis 173 (13 patients) other 37 (12 patients); Physical Therapy 1302 (99 patients); Chronic Disorders 12,229 (379 patients); Cancer 1752 (119 patients); Arthritis 842 (26 patients); Heart Disease 771 (68 patients); Diabetes 1173 (56 patients); Maternity 2806 (722 patients); Health Supervision 3393 (1296 patients); not set 1523 and Industrial 61.

Executive Director, Miss Hannah Dutter, states that approximately 63 percent of the 1960 financial support of the Association was made available through the United Fund.

Gerald Cadden Kills Brother In Bitter Quarrel

Takes Brutal Beating From Larger Man Before Firing Shot

A small and asthmatic Harveys Lake resident 58 years old has been granted bail after being charged with manslaughter in the death of his brother, five years younger and 110 pounds heavier.

The original charge of murder was dropped when investigation showed that Gerald Cadden had been badly beaten by his brother Stanley and that his wife had also been painfully beaten before the trigger was pulled.

Gerald, slammed to the floor by his brother Stanley, shot his aggressor twice. Bullets from the .22 Woodsman Colt revolver traced an upward route, the second cutting an artery and resulting in instant death.

Gerald was taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Jones of Harveys Lake. Charged with murder, he was held without bail, but at General Hospital under armed guard instead of Luzerne County Prison. He was admitted at 10:30 and placed under oxygen.

Dr. Lester Saidman reports that because of several cracked ribs and severe bruising, result of the beating, Gerald will be hospitalized for at least another week. He had recovered from pneumonia only two weeks earlier and was in poor physical condition.

Events Leading To The Tragedy Fifteen years ago, in 1946, the mother of Stanley, Gerald, and another brother Leo, died.

She appointed Stanley and Gerald administrators of her will, to distribute assets of something like $1,000.

The two brothers had never been able to agree. There were many bitter disputes.

Wednesday afternoon at 3, Stanley Cadden of Scranton, accompanied by Leo, also of Scranton, located Gerald at the Wahoo Inn where he was calling upon the custodian, John Liberty.

Gerald told his brother to go home, not to come to his house, that he had nothing to say to him.

Gerald went home, and two hours later Stanley forced open the screen door over Gerald's protests.

Stanley attacked Gerald, beat him up, and left him crumpled on the kitchen floor.

Then Stanley beat up Gerald's wife, principal of the Mackin elementary school at East End.

Leaving her helpless, Stanley returned to the kitchen, swinging at Gerald.

Gerald, still lying in the corner of the kitchen floor, aimed and fired in self defense. Stanley collapsed over the table.

The visit had lasted five minutes. Mrs. Cadden reached the telephone and called assistant Chief Walbridge Leinthal.

Deputy coroner Stephen Glova certified the cause of death.

Attorneys John Gallagher and Joseph Olexy arrived.

Gerald's next door neighbor, Harry Trebilcock, posted bail of $2,500 at General Hospital the following afternoon, Judge Charles Shea officiating.

Cornerstone At New High School Contains Records

Frigid Weather For Official Ceremony Sunday, October 15

Frigid weather Sunday afternoon caused the cornerstone laying at Dallas Senior High School to proceed at a brisker pace than planned.

The Senior High School Band marched to the new flagpole, played a selection under direction of Lester Lewis, and came to attention during the brief ceremony.

The granite block, chiseled with the numerals 1961, was fitted with a previously sealed metal box.

Welding trowels were James O. Lacy, representing architects Lacy Atherton and Davis; Charles Manneer, president Dallas School Board; Frederick Eck, president Dallas Building Authority; Boyd Kline, contractor.

Introduced by Dr. Robert A. Mellman, Rev. Russell C. Lawry, pastor of Dallas Methodist Church, gave the invocation.

Following the application of the mortar and before the stone was slipped into place and sealed, representatives of the Key Club Drill Team and the Keyettes, in blue and white uniforms, raised the new flag. Taking part were Barry Slocum, Glenda Williams, and Gary Cobb.

As it reached the top of the pole, the High School Band played the National Anthem.

Rev. Francis A. Kane, pastor of Gate of Heaven Church, pronounced the benediction.

Everybody went inside to thaw out. Open House lasted until 5:30. Many residents who had not heretofore visited the new school, toured the building.

Another chance to see the new building will come Friday night, when formal dedication will take place in the Auditorium.

Things that went into the cornerstone, preserved for posterity, included a number of copies of the Dallas Post dealing with special aspects of the actual building program over the past year, including coverage of the last Westmoreland High School graduation; 1961 yearbook, Dal-King; invitation to the first commencement of the Union District, 1958.
