Lake-Lehman School Board announces that Jane Warfield, of Kingston, presently a senior at Kutztown State College and doing her practice teaching in Reading, will teach art in the senior high school beginning with September 1962.

The trouble with a one-track mind is its narrow gauge and a lack of switching facilities.

School Flagpoles

Steel flagpoles are being assembled at Ross, Lehman, and Noxen schools. The type of pole permits bending down flat to the ground for repairs or painting.

Junior Class Rings The biggest day in the life of a Junior is the day of getting the class rings. Before the Thanksgiving vacation Lake Juniors received their rings.

Lehman Juniors had a shock last week. Mr. Arthur Nuss, class advisor, wrote this message on the black boards, "You can pick up your class rings in Room 2 from 12:45 to 1:15. WHEN THEY GET HERE".

This was a big disappointment. But I'm sure that by the time this is published, all the Juniors will be in a gay mood because they finally got their class rings.

Who's Who Theodore Toluba and Gary De-Hope, Lake-Lehman graduates, have been named to "Who's Who Among American Colleges, and Universities. Both are Seniors at Wilkes College. To gain acceptance one must have excelled scholastically and socially. Gary and Teddy have been active in various campus organizations during their four years of college.

F. N. A. Lehman Future Nurses' Club is conducting a clothing drive from November 17 to December 1 to enable children of a southern mountain district to attend school. The Club asks for good, usable, low heeled shoes, jeans, sweaters, dresses, shirts, light coats, socks, underwear, and hats. This clothing is to be brought to the Health Room before classes in the morning.

Snow Removal Hampered By Stalled Cars

Keeping streets and highways open after heavy snowfalls is a problem to which many state and local road officials give night-and-day attention all winter long, Safety Commissioner O. D. Shipley said.

"In most snow-belt communities, local ordinances prohibit overnight parking to allow city crews opportunity to remove snow without hindrance from vehicles parked at the curbs," he pointed out.

"On rural roads, from the most modern expressway to the narrowest town road, highway maintenance crews work extremely hard during storms and blizzards in a mammoth effort to keep roads open for essential traffic."

Shipley observed that last March officials of numerous large Eastern cities became so concerned over the chaotic traffic conditions which followed severe blizzards that they called the first Annual Conference on Urban Snow Removal Problems.

In addition to agreeing on the need for better equipment for snow removal, stronger enforcement of parking and emergency condition regulations, the delegates stressed the paramount problem caused by many private cars and trucks becoming stalled and abandoned in the snow because they did not have needed tire chains.

It was revealed that many cities, both large and small, were left crippled and virtually paralyzed when essential fire and police vehicles, properly equipped with adequate traction, were unable to maneuver around massive traffic jams caused by chainless private cars and trucks. Snowplows and even fire trucks, although properly equipped with chains, were blocked for hours.

"The snow fighters and members of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards agreed that the driving public should be alerted to two major findings and safety precautions," Shipley declared.

"One finding is that scientific tests and experience show reinforced tire chains are the most practical means of preventing prolonged delays and winter skidwrecks during severe weather and road conditions," he pointed out.

"The second recommendation is that while snow tires are also recommended as aids for mild-to-medium snowfalls in non-hilly areas, they do not replace the occasional need for tire chains during deep-snow conditions or even light snow or glare ice surfaces where there are hills."

Meeker "Over the river and through the woods to grandmother's house we'll go" and though there wasn't enough snow for a sleigh in most places, some folks did get around to visit.
