

Government Bulletin On Fall-Out Stresses Protection For Stock

U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin, "Defense Against Radioactive Fallout on the Farm," which lists a number of important things for agriculturalists to know in time of possible disaster.

Dangers to crops and dairy animals are stressed, with suggestions as to feeding and watering stock during critical periods; shelters for animals during peak radiation; when it is safe to once more turn them out to pasture; length of time required for decay of fall-out; washing away of radioactive material by bathing the animals to get particles out of their hair. The pamphlet explains precautions for field workers and farm hands; safety measures for those handling fruit and vegetables; keeping the water supply from contamination, etc.

Only the outside layer of stored feed, the pamphlet emphasizes, will become contaminated. The rest will be usable. Covering is of extreme importance, as radioactivity is carried by finely divided dust particles. Nobody expects atomic attack. But it is a good idea to know what to do, and how to protect farm animals as well as people if the day should come. On the farmer rests squarely the responsibility for feeding the country, in time of peace or time of war. The farmer's job is the foundation stone of survival.

Dallas, Lake-Lehman Lose To Swoyersville

On the local High School basketball scene this weekend, Dallas travels to West Wyoming Friday night and Lake-Lehman hosts Wilkes-Barre Township on the Lehman floor.

Dallas and West Wyoming switched their games, with Dallas being the home team the first half when the floor was being refinished at the West Wyoming gym, so this half Dallas will play on the Cowboys court. Dallas won the first meeting between these teams and is anxious to make it two straight Friday night.

Lake-Lehman still finding it difficult to win a ball game, hopes to atone for its 62-29 drubbing at the hands of the Braves of Eddie Solack at the Township gym in the first half.

The Knights have been able to get their offense shapened a bit since the first meeting but will have to stop the high scoring Ferrence in order to crack the win column.

Dallas Loses Dallas opened the second half last Thursday by dropping a 56-48 decision to Swoyersville.

A bad second period in which the Sailors outscored Dallas 14-5 was the turning point of the tilt.

Tom Gauntlett with 24 and Bob Letts 14 led the Dallas offense, while Olejnik with 24, Kemzura 14 and Helup 12 led the scoring for the Sailors.

Knights Drop Pair Lake-Lehman dropped its first two starts of the second half losing to Ashley 81-34 Friday night, and dropping a 72-48 verdict to Swoyersville Tuesday.

In the Ashley fray, Rogers was high man with 9 tallies in a losing effort. White 22, Buckland 17 and Sura 15 sparked the Rockets offense.

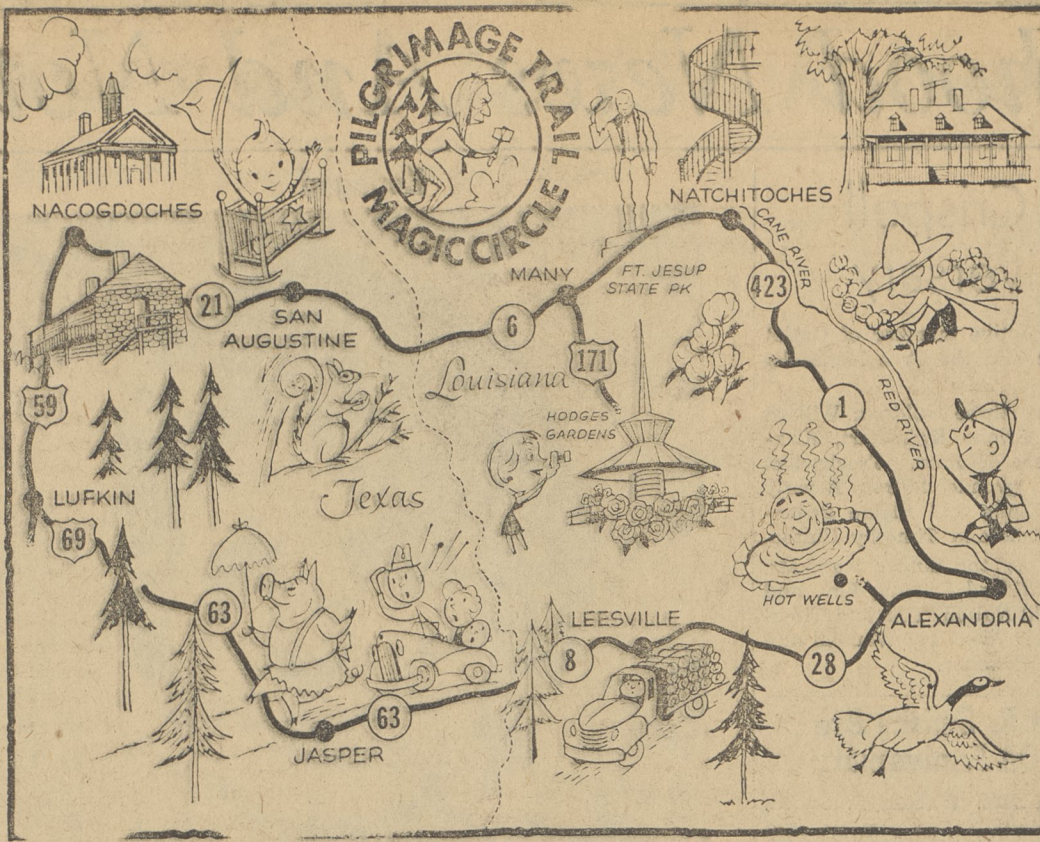

O'neick Scores 34 In losing to the Sailors, Bob Rogers copied scoring honors with 20 tallies, 16 in the second half. Ken Ellsworth followed with 15, with 11 coming in the opening half.

The big scorer for the night was Olejnik of the Sailors with 34 tallies, 14 in the first half and 20 in the third quarter before being yanked from the line-up by coach Champi.

Kemzura also chipped in with 19 markers to aid Olejnik.

College Misericordia cagers will stage a benefit game tonight at 7:30 p.m., proceeds will go to the Fred Hennebaul Recovery Fund. Tonight's game will find the hoopers of coaches Marie Morris and Elizabeth Titus in a return match with the Wilkes Colonettes.

In the first game of the series played this year in the city gym, Misericordia defeated their local rivals 51-41. Wilkes with a greatly improved sextet will be geared to give the Back Mountain squad plenty of tough competition in hopes of their first victory over Misericordia since relations were initiated several years ago.

The game this evening will add a timely element to the Hennebaul benefit since the three forwards who comprise the Misericordia starting lineup are alumnae and former teammates at Lehman High School. Senior forwards Jean Drapiewski and Leanne Swan together with junior Sara Gregory played varsity basketball while students at Lehman
