The Fred Ecks Have Visitors From Africa, With Report On Marilyn

A social worker whose lifelong ambition from early childhood was to work in the African field was guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eck over the weekend, and spoke in the Church School at St. Paul's Lutheran.

The Ecks and Miss Winifred Wilson had never met before, but Miss Wilson had met Marilyn Eek, now spending a year in Southern Rhodesia as a Rotary Exchange student. Miss Wilson reports that everybody in Bulawayo entertains a high opinion of Marilyn, considering her a good ambassador of friendship.

For the next three months, Miss Wilson will study under auspices of the State Department, travelling widely in this country, taking notes on advancement of women. She was given a special grant by International Federation of Business and Professional Women to attend the sixteenth session of the Status of Women Commission at the U.N. in New York City.

She reports that she loved New York, especially its super markets. In visiting Shavertown, Miss Wilson was intrigued with the first American home in which she had been an unofficial guest, and the first American church.

Asked whether the orbital flight of John Glenn had been noted in Africa, she said that it had, indeed. The space capsule passed over her area, and residents sat up all night to hear reports from the astronaut. Before returning to Africa, Miss Wilson will visit Los Angeles, Seattle, New Orleans. On her way home she will attend an International Congress in Oslo.

Her local visits took in the new Dallas High School, the view from the roof of the N. E. National Bank, the Back Mountain Memorial Library, and College Misericordia.

YOUR HELP, PLEASE

A great many address changes for our readers are obtained only by means of a return postal form when copies of the Dallas Post are not deliverable. The charge for this service, costly enough before, has now been doubled to 10 cents per notice. Please help us to hold down this expense by sending in your new address as soon as you know it, if you are moving.

And please include your postal zone number; that is important.
