MT. ZION NOTES
 Elwood Gross of Wyoming, brother of Don Gross of Camp Ground Road, is beginning to build a house on a lot purchased from Richard Dymond on Hicks Creek road.

Construction work has begun on the road from Sands' corners to Howard Krum's. Trees are being felled, brush is being burned, new sluices are being laid. Up at the corner where our road joins the other road from West Wyoming a sluice is being laid which will do away with the flooding over the road. It looks as if many curves are to be done away and the road widened.

At this writing my work as chaplain at Valley Crest is increasing. We have 75 Protestant patients there now. As Easter draws near I am giving individual communion to several patients.

This is being written Sunday. Tuffy is moping around, sleeping at just looking off into space. "Something has gone wrong around here," he says.

He did finally get his supper eaten after I sat down beside him and stirred it with a spoon and sprinkled graham cracker crumbs over it a couple of times.

Catherine, his special goddess, left Saturday and isn't back yet. She and Nettie Parrish went to Baltimore; Nettie to visit the Clemens family, Dorothy and Catherine were invited to have supper too. Catherine went down to visit Dottie and to attend a concert Sunday night in which Dottie is signing with her choir and others, Brahms' Requiem. Cathy had sung that in the Wyoming Valley Oratorio chorus and was eager to hear some other group do it. She and Dottie will have a wonderful time.
