

Students Say Few Europeans Have High Regard for Americans

QUESTION 8
Sally Moyer To Chris Leydolt,
When you are translating, do you think in English or in your own native tongue?

CHRIS LEYDOLT, AUSTRIA
In the beginning I didn't have too much training, but if you know all the words and what they mean, you can form a sentence. I don't think German when I read, I don't have to transfer the sentence into German.

ELSBETH GERRITS, Holland
As I mentioned a few days ago, I completely think in English and I dream in English. I dream of things which happened here and things I could have said during the day. It comes to me in English. Even when you speak you try to use English and forget Dutch.

QUESTION 9

Sally Moyer to Bjarne Thorning-Lund,
Would you say that your visit has been helpful and informative and if so, how?

BJARNE THORNING-LUND, Denmark
Definitely! In the first place, the impression they have in Europe is not too good of the Americans. They are very self-centered and are interested only in themselves. I have found this to be very wrong. People want to know everything about other countries. We try to understand these people and not just to shake their hand. You try to give them a good understanding.

ARVIN SHAH, India
One thing, certain people are self-centered and some of the materialistic view points in America are wrong. The Americans should not believe that America is the best; that America is above every other nation. This does not benefit your minds, that I am very low compared to you. Of course, America is progressive but you should not feel better than us. You know you are the best and it's your duty to help other nations. In China the Americans have done a tremendous deed and they have tried to prove that they are thinking about us. They, too, have a feeling of humanity. I think it will be much better if the people could forget that they are the best nation.

ELSBETH GERRITS, Holland
I think that when you are away from your country for one year you appreciate your country more than before. You realize that you miss it and you see things you like especially in your own country. You appreciate it more when you're in another country.

QUESTION 10

Elfreide Heft to Elsbeth Gerrits, Holland,
Do the young people in your country tend to group together in cliques and if not why?

ELSBETH GERRITS, Holland
That is very hard to say. I think they do. It depends on the schools you are in, considering both private and public. There are sport clubs and when you want to be a member they ask you what your father does. I think this is one of the causes that the students don't clique. The public schools are different. Everybody was one big group. The reason for this was when we go to school we have the same class and every year we have the same home room teacher. When there's a clique forming in the school you can go to the teacher and have her try to make it one big group again. In most public schools they go to the teacher when they have any problems. Such as the girl who has no friends. They go to the teacher and tell her that. In the beginning you are embarrassed and shy and don't confide in your teacher but after two years you are able to tell what you feel, what you think about things. They will do this again and again.

BJARNE THORNING-LUND
I think that all over the world students tend to group together. They want to take care of themselves. And think this is a problem all over the world. They tend to group together with the people who have the same interests as themselves. They discuss the things they like such as sports, and this will tend to form a clique. It's proof of fact that birds of a feather flock together.

ARVIN SHAH
You don't have these in the public or private schools cause you are together in one class and you just communicate with these people. But in the university, you do this because of the variety of classes.

Moderator
The basic difference between American teenagers and yours is what?

ARVIN SHAH, India
Basically, there is not much difference between students of any nation and I don't think there is any difference between what you are and what they are. After all, the teenager's mind is of the same progressive and I don't think there's very much difference. Some people say that American students are known for juvenile delinquency. We do not have drinking in India and we do not have as many cars.

BJARNE THORNING-LUND
I would say that basically all the young people are the same. When I just came here there was much hostility because I was a foreigner. When you talk to these kids you find out that we are pretty much the same. I think that your school system is very appropriate.

QUESTION 11
Dorothy Eck to Arvin Shah,
What has impressed you most in your visit to American historic scenes or shrines if you have visited them?

ARVIN SHAH, India
I don't think I can answer that.

BJARNE THORNING-LUND, Denmark
I'm sorry too.

NUALA DOWNEY, New Zealand
I've been to Washington and Valley Forge and that is all I've seen. I didn't find anything extremely interesting.

ELSBETH GERRITS, Holland
I've been all over Europe and you can't compare historic shrines in Europe with those in America. Because they are different in ages. This history is pretty young here. I went to Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The Hall didn't interest me, but the man that was working there did. I was amazed to hear that young people send them chairs, tables, and desks that were used in this hall and it was very interesting to see how they handled them. The Hall itself didn't impress me very much.

QUESTION 12
Diane Payne to Bjarne Thorning-Lund,
What do you miss most now and what will you possibly miss when you return to your home?

BJARNE THORNING-LUND
Actually there is not too much that I miss. I miss my parents and friends. When you love a country and are accepted you don't feel so much loneliness. When I go home I think I will miss the United States more. I found more and truer friends over here.

ELSBETH GERRITS, Holland
When you return you will always remember your experiences and friends. It will be hard to accept the idea that I might never return. I will miss the United States and the people very much.

CHRIS LEYDOLT
I will miss the Country Clubs very much. You have a lot of clubs and they're very nice. The radio has a very nice program—WARM.

QUESTION 13
Sandy Ambrose to Noala Downey, New Zealand,
Are the television programs in your country similar to ours and if not, in what way do they differ?

ELSBETH GERRITS
I don't think that you could tell that yet. I certainly think that she shows the country that she went to that there is some interest in that country and I don't know if it will have any effect. I think that there might be some logical effects.

ARVIN SHAH
I think that this question is most suitable to me because she just

BJARNE THORNING-LUND
Television is eight or ten years old and it's sponsored by the state. We have only one channel and one program a day from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night. The programs we get there are cut throat. They are selected by the government.

CHRIS LEYDOLT
Television is very high classed. It's very striking and very interesting when you get used to it.

QUESTION 14
Sally Moyer to Chris Leydolt, Austria
Do you have racial prejudices in your country and if so, what methods have been adopted to combat them?

CHRIS LEYDOLT, Austria
There was a lot of desecration against the Jews. There is no racial discrimination between the people.

BJARNE THORNING-LUND
During World War 2 we did all we could to hide people from the Germans. Freedom fighters paid with their lives to help the people.

QUESTION 15
Elfreide Heft to Arvin Shah, India
What religion is predominant in your country?

ARVIN SHAH
Hinduism is in the majority. The second is Christianity. The third is of Moslems. Most of the people are Hindus.

Moderator
We don't have much time left, so we better go to the last question. Dorothy Eck to Elsbeth Gerrits, Holland

QUESTION 16
Do you feel that our First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy, has strengthened our prestige in her recent trip abroad and if so, in what ways?

visited my country. I think this will have a great effect on the people. The Americans are interested in coming to India. I think that Mrs. Kennedy knows that there is a love of beauty in India, and the people were impressed by seeing her. Thousands of them came out to welcome her. I think it has a very great influence on the people. Such as when Queen Elizabeth 2 came to India, millions of people came to see her.

Any more comments before we close? I would like to thank our guests and I think that everybody enjoyed it all—dismissed.
