MT. ZION
Cathy decided Saturday morning in was best to go to Wilkes-Barre to her work at the Y.M.C.A. by way of West Pittston. The road commonly called the Bodle Road (which I think might better be called the Earl Road, but which I often designate as the road up from the parsonage) is now getting the works.

Ditches and sluices are being dug and laid, banks are being dug back. But the biggest construction work at present is being done down the hill beyond Weatherly's Happy Hill where the curve is to be straightened in front of John and Hilda Coon's place.

Further down near the Klein's and way on down near the bottom of the hill the bulldozers are scraping and preparing new places for road location. Then on the road up from Sanddale Farms past Wyoming Camp Ground road to where our road turns down the hill it is a dusty place with blastings, bulldozings, front-end loaders making worse and worse preparatory to making them better. It looks as if it is to be a gradual slope up the hill. As of this writing, Saturday, our road has had nothing worse done to it than arrangements for some poles to be moved. When they really get to scooping and filling on this road we think our best way out might be by helicopter from our landing field meadow!

Gene LaBar is home from the Marines for a few days, looking fit to guard our country's honor, on land and sea. By the way, his grandfather Cleve LaBar is home from the hospital but not feeling very perky yet.

This has nothing to do with what is just written but it came to mind. When Cathy and Nettie Parrish went together to Baltimore it was a good experience in learning about farming. Nettie works in the soil conservation office in Wilkes-Barre and is soil conscious. As they drove along suddenly Nettie would exclaim, "Now look at that contour plowing! Isn't that beautiful!" Cathy took a quick glance without ditching the car. Then a groan of horror came from Miss Nettie: "O no! Look there how the soil is being washed right down those furrows!" Cathy glanced and knew what she meant. Then Cathy made a comment about a pile of yellow dirt, as she called it. "That isn't dirt," Nettie said, "that's soil." Well, life with a chosen passenger can be educative!

Wyoming Conference
This week is Wyoming Methodist Conference week in Scranton. While Russ Lowry is stewing because some of the men are late with their Conference reports for which he must gather needed statistics, I am feeling the pleasure of retirement.

Not having to make out one of those annual reports in duplicate and see that the membership figures come out even after the additions, deaths and removals have been accounted for is a relief.

On Thursday which is usually a big day at Conference I'll probably be visiting my captive flock at Valley Crest. I had on my list as of last week 84 Protestant patients. Mine is an ecumenical parish (you should get well acquainted with that word ecumenical these days) with Lutherans, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Baptists, Methodists, Reformed, and a few listed as "no church". (The Roman Catholic lists none as "no church".)

Oratorio Sunday
On what we Methodists know as Conference Sunday will be for us Gilbert's "Oratorio Sunday", for "Catherine's concert" is that Sunday afternoon. (There are others singing in it besides Cathy!) I hope you can hear it. It will lift you out of your seat. The oboe solos and the French horns and trumpets along with kettle drums sent the bumpy-bumps all over my skin! Get your contributor's card and get to St. Stephens Church by three o'clock if you want to sit down.

At Mount Zion W.S.C.S. Tuesday night Miss Lunetta Lorah of West Pittston and recently of Japan showed her slide pictures not only of Japan but also of some of her travels through India.

ORANGE
The other day when I was up at Orange, Paul Kunkle was overseeing a job of ditching between his house and his mother's. It seems Myrtle's well water is so hard you have to kick it with your heel to break it up (that's the way they do on TV!) So Paul has laid a line of pipe from his way-down-deep well over to his mother's house. So now both families are supplied.
