Million Strong

There are one million carpenters in the U.S. and probably another ten million men who tinker with wood on weekends and during vacation. Few towns are so small they do not boast a trained carpenter.

First Export

First product shipped from the New World to England was clapboards made in Virginia from pine. Today most of the 40 billion feet of lumber cut in this country are needed to build new homes, schools and churches as well as farm structures for a growing nation.

No Traffic Lights, But Trolley Tracks And Mud

That's the old trolley station in the foreground. Floyd Hileman, who left his native Dallas when he was nine years old, and is now a resident of 242 Pettebone Street, Wyoming, found this picture, taken around the turn of the century, and brought it into the office of the Dallas Post. You can't see the house where his father and mother, the late George and Elizabeth Kline Hileman lived, as it is located up around the curve, about opposite the house where Dr. Robert Bodycomb lives now, but which was at that time the Rice home.

They built homes well in the 19th century, for the use of future generations. The Ryman homestead, now the Back Mountain Memorial Library, farther up the hill and around the curve, does not appear in the photograph. The Mott home and the Spencer home have not changed much in general appearance.

There's a harness shop, and a barber shop, a drug store and a butcher shop on the main drag. But who are those folks gathered in front of the trolley station? And is that man in the white apron butcher White?

"Hard Is The Heart That Loveth Naught In May"

Snowdrop

When, full of warm and eager love,
I clasp you in my fond embrace,
You gently push me back and say,
"Take care, my dear, you'll spoil my lace."

You kiss me just as you would kiss
Some woman friend you chanced to see;
You call me "dearest." — All love's forms
Are yours, not its reality.

Oh, Annie! cry, and storm and rave!
Do anything with passion in it!
Hate me an hour, and then turn round
And love me truly, just one minute.

— William Wetmore Story

When I Was Young and Twenty

When I was young and twenty
I heard a wise man say,
"Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away;
Give pearls away and rubies
But keep your fancy free"
But I was one-and-twenty,
No use to talk to me.
When I was one-and-twenty
I heard him say again,
"The heart out of the bosom
Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs a-plenty
And sold for endless rue."
And I am two-and-twenty,
And oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.

— A. E. Housman

The Look

...Chaucer

Strephon kissed me in the spring,
Robin in the fall,
But Colin only looked at me
And never kissed at all

Strephon's kiss was lost in jest,
Robin's lost in play,
But the kiss in Colin's eyes
Haunts me night and day.

— Sara Teasdale

To Phyllis

Phyllis, you little rosy rake,
That heart of yours I long to rifle:
Come, give it me, and do not make
So much ado about a trifle!

— Thomas Moore
