"The only money we had came from our insurance company"

Some months ago a woman wrote to her insurance company (a company we represent) to say that the only money the family had during her husband's long illness, were the insurance checks she received.

It's true that nothing can bring money troubles faster than a bad accident or long illness that prevents a worker from working and earning. That's when a substitute insurance income is desperately needed. The policy that can provide that money is DISABILITY INCOME insurance. For any covered sickness or accident (and most ARE covered), this policy keeps a tax-free monthly check coming your way when your family wage-earner is disabled. May we tell you more about DISABILITY INCOME INSURANCE?
