Children Flock To The New Fence To Admire Shetland Pony Babies

All summer, children have been hanging over the pasture fence out beyond Alderson, yearning over the baby Shetland ponies. The forty brood mares on the Joseph Rosenthal farm across the road from Sterling Farms have just about finished foaling for the year. Small editions of palomino Shetlands frisk about the pasture, the smaller ones keeping close to their mothers.

Brood mares and foals during the winter are housed in the newly reconditioned barns. There is a steady demand for yearling ponies.

Adam Stefanowicz, for eight years manager for John Fine's farm in Loyalville, now manager for Mr. Rosenthal of Forty Fort, reports that in addition to the ponies, the farm has 85 registered Holsteins, 60 milkers. Outlet for milk is the Grablick Dairy in Pittston.

Facilities, says Mr. Stefanowicz, are sufficient for a larger herd. Expectation is that it will number 100 shortly. A tiled milking parlor routes milk directly from cow to cooling tank without interference of human hands. Temperature of fluid milk is reduced sharply and immediately to 35 degrees.

Extensive renovation is going on. The handsome hand-hewed fence which is extending itself around the property, up the road which divides Sterling Farm from the former Kern acreage, and around the sharp corner where the most beautiful pink laurel in the countryside has fallen a prey to the advancing bulldozers, will eventually enclose the entire property.

The farm belonged in the early 1900s to Charles Kern, father of William Kern who bought the property eventually and last fall sold it to Joseph Rosenthal.

Charles Kern owned about 400 acres, bounded on the south by the Buckwheat Hollow Road, which follows the former logging train tracks.

The acreage includes the Montross farm, the Mark Morgan farm on the hillside, and a 150 acre tract purchased from the Albert Lewis Lumber Company after logging operations were completed and the hillside denuded.

Charles had a milk business in Wilkes-Barre, with a five-wagon operation. Milk was hauled in from the farm by mules and horses, for distribution.

In 1918, when it became impossible to keep farm help because of Appointment of Ronald Carruthers as Chief Engineer of Commonwealth Telephone Company has been announced by A. J. Sordani, Jr., president.

Mr. Carruthers is a familiar figure in the Dallas area since he served as Commonwealth's equipment engineer from June, 1953, to July, 1959. Since his return, he has purchased the Harry Burns home on Sterling Avenue where he resides with his wife, Dorothy, and children, Gillian, Debra, Diane and Susan.

After leaving Commonwealth Telephone Company in 1959, Carruthers served for two years as manager of Circuit Engineering, then of Product Planning for ITT Kellogg. During this period he traveled extensively through European countries evaluating their telephone systems.

In June, 1961, he joined the staff of North American Phillips Company, Inc., as telephone systems marketing manager again traveling through England and Holland engaged in product planning for American markets.

Mr. Carruthers, a native of England, a U. S. citizen since 1958, is a graduate of Ele-Communications Engineering, City & Guilds of London Institute. Before coming to the United States in 1953, he served from 1940 as telephone engineer in the British Post Office Department, Liverpool. Four years of this period were interrupted with service as a navigator in the Royal Air Force.

ROSS HENRY WALKER
Dallas Rotary welcomes its guest student for the coming year on Sunday, August 26. The student is a young man 17 years of age from Australia whose name is Ross Henry Walker.
Mr. Walker, was a high school student in Australia. He participated in sports and the school band, and was active in many other things. He was a boarding school student for several years so he should not mind being away from home. He will attend Dallas Area High School.
Ross is deeply interested in farming methods and techniques, particularly dairy farming. His father operates a 700 acre farm with 100 head of dairy cows, along with grazing, tobacco, and general farming.
He will leave Australia August 23 and arrive in New York on August 26. Dallas Rotary Club president, Jack Landis and a delegation of Rotarians will welcome him and bring him to Dallas. For the ensuing year he will be the guest of Dallas Rotary Club, living in a number of the members' homes.

Four Students Sail Tomorrow

Rotary Exchange Again In Action

Four Local students will sail Friday noon on the Nieuw Amsterdam from New York, headed for a year of Rotary Exchange program study in Europe. They are Nancy Sieber, Dale Mosier, Sandy Ambrose, and John Parry.

Nancy and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Sieber, Shavertown, expect to start for New York today. Luggage will go aboard the boat this afternoon at 5, and the vessel will cast off tomorrow at noon. It will land August 19, a slow passage by modern jet-flight standards, but too short to experience all the many thrills of shipboard life.

Nancy is headed for a girls' school in Leeuwarden to finish her last year of high school. She will stay with the E. Kingma family for the first term of the school year.

Headed for Holland also are Sandy and John. Dale is going on to Germany. All four students are from Dallas High School.
