 "How do you like the school lunch program?" brings replies from mothers in the community.
 "For families having two or maybe three children in school, it's fine," says Mrs. Russell Lawry, Dallas. She went on to say that it could be quite a burden for families with five or six children, because it is far less expensive to pack a lunch.
 "But there are a lot of advantages," she went on, "because children tend to copy their schoolmates, and if a schoolmate is enjoying a hot lunch, it increases the appetite. And children learn to eat things that they have been turned down at home."
 "As for the teachers, where else can you get a good substantial meal for 45 cents? Many teachers live alone. For these women, a hot meal in the middle of the day means far less cooking at night."
