Back Mountain Gets Long Turkey Season

Wild turkey hunters in the Back Mountain and certain other regions may continue to fire away until November 24, according to Pennsylvania Game Commission.

In most of Pennsylvania, however, the season closes Saturday, at 5 p.m. This shorter season is aimed at maintaining wild turkey populations in areas of limited and more accessible range.

Of primary interest to area hunters are the regions of Luzerne County north of the Susquehanna River, and, in Wyoming County, those west of it. The northern section of Columbia County will also be open.

Northern Luzerne and western Wyoming Counties are in what is known as the northcentral region "prime turkey range," having a longer season because the range is less accessible and more extensive.

The Commission announced Monday that there are still thousands of birds roaming the Pennsylvania forests, and reckons the statewide turkey population to be as good, if not better than last year.

Neighborhood Team Meets
Dallas-Noxen Girl Scout

Local Cows Double Norm

Championship Guernsey and Holstein cattle from the Back Mountain are doubling average dairy cow production figures, according to Pennsylvania State University tests.

Holsteins belonging to Ralph M. Sands, Carverton, and Raymond Goeringer's Guernseys, Dallas, have received national acclamation from their respective club associations in New England, with animals producing top poundage and butterfat records.

Guernseys from Andrew J. Sordoni's Sterling Farms, Harveys Lake were also honored by the Cattle Club.

The national average output of a dairy cow is 7,211 lbs milk and 270 lbs. butterfat, annually. Sands' Anna Plainville Reflection, 5, produced 15,458 and 640 in 320 days. His Hawkhenst Fond Empress, 7, gave 15,306 and 615 in 306 days.

Goeringer's Mainstone Wal Gorette, 3, gave 14,700 and 756 in 305 days, and likewise in that time, his Hanover Hill T Vivian, 3, produced 10,960 and 537.

Senator Sordoni's farm has four champions completing the top official DHR production records: Sterling Juno, 4, 12,800 and 629. Sterling Floretta, 4, 12,600 and 658. Sterling Ellabel, 2, 10,410 and 537. Sterling Betty Ann, 2, 8,920 and 493. All records were established in 305 days.

Cows from all three farms were milked twice daily, to qualify for the records kept by The Holstein-Friesian Association and The American Guernsey Cattle Club.

November 14, 10:00 a.m. at Dallas Methodist Church.

Historical Society Members To See
Lyman Howe's 1906 Centennial Film

Something extra-special awaits members of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society on the evening of November 27th!

Through the generosity of the Boston Store, their new TIMOTHY PICKERING ROOM will be placed at the disposal of members and guests.

There will be an exclusive preview of Lyman Howe's rare film, Wilkes-Barre's Centennial: 1906, with a lively narration by Ralph Hazelton of Trucksville and an inimitable introductory lecture, "Wilkes-Barre's Glorious Celebration," by Professor Leroy Bugbee.

A lavish buffet supper is being prepared: all one can eat for $1.25 per person. Serving will begin at 7 with the program following at 8. As if this prospect were not splendid enough, the Boston Store—"consolidator of America's heritage"—will provide each person with an outstanding historical narrative on TIMOTHY PICKERING, and turn over the entire evening's proceeds to the Susquehanna Publication Fund; thereby aiding the Society to meet the publishing costs of Volume V of The Susquehanna Company Papers.

Lehman ambulance took Mrs. Arminie Keller from Carpenter's Convalescent Home, Idetown, to Noxen Clinic Thursday night around 6, after she suffered a fall.

Her leg was examined for injury and she was discharged.
