

Mt. Zion

MYSTERY SOLVED!

Recently I mentioned new cellar excavation near here. Didn't know who done it!

Last week when we drove past the spot on our way to the Wyoming Seminary Music Department recital, we saw a huge truck of a prefab housing company stuck in the driveway. On our way home along about midnight, there was a long line of cars and the truck was unloading.

Later on, Mr. Curiosity, himself strolled around to see what was going on. There was Ralph Swan waterproofing the foundation walls with the help of young Howard Dymond and other members of the Elaine Dymond family, friends of the Swans. By and by Shirley Swan and Vivian Dymond drove in with the other children.

We are glad indeed to have the Swans as neighbors, for they are swell folks. Ralph was one of the boys at Dimock Camp Ground way back when I was working with youth. Shirley is the former Shirley Johnson of Truckville. The house is about built, with paneled sides and glazed windows already in their frames. All Ralph will have to do is finish the insides, install water, electricity and plumbing.

One thing that pleased Ralph was the way the dozen neighbors from right around these diggings lined up cars to help get the truck of prefab into the driveway and help unload the materials. They were there till about midnight before it was all done.

ANOTHER NEW HOUSE

Down Mt. Zion road toward Sutson Creek road lives Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bell. Excavation has been going on there for some time, a large hole with an open ditch from the side. Wondered what it was to be found out. It's the cellar for a new house to be built by Dan Bell Jr. There was a minimum of rock encountered by Alex Sherinski with his bulldozer, but plenty of hardpan, and some gravel and water. When a new house is in the process I feel like saying the words of a song we've all heard: "Bless this house, O Lord, we pray".

George Ruckno Named

George Ruckno, Shrine Acres, was elected Council Member at Large of Wyoming Boy Scout Council, at the same election at Hotel Sterling on Monday which saw Richard A. Saul, Kingston, installed as president.

Feeding The Guinea-Pig Or Listening To The Story Lady, It's All Fun

All young children have a great interest in and love for living things. Two guinea pigs were cared for and loved for several weeks. Other pets enjoyed throughout the year were turtles, goldfish, pet mice, ducks, chicks and an Easter Rabbit.

Story time is always a happy time and an everyday "must" in kindergarten. Listening to stories and poetry, and using books for information show the children how much pleasure and help books can bring.

Pick out your own child . . . it's more fun that way.

Make Way For Future Firemen Of The Back Mountain

Future firemen of the Back Mountain are receiving their first instructions. Volunteers from Shavertown Fire Company brought two trucks to Westmoreland Elementary School to give all kindergarten children a close look. Five-year olds, dizzy with delight tried on helmets and raincoats, climbed aboard the truck, and dreamed of the time when they could answer the siren in the middle of the night, go screaming down the highway, and rescue somebody from a second-story window by erecting a tall ladder.

Lambs And Horses Keep Kindergartners Breathless

Petting one of the prize lambs at the Herman Thomas farm, Highland Acres, are Dallas kindergartners, the black sheep almost invisible against the green grass, and overshadowed by moppets who yearn to feed him a peanut.

Kindergarten Opens A New World To Eager Five-Year-Old Children

by THE STORY-LADY

Kindergarten is a very happy experience for five-year-old children. It is a year of growth in which the total development of the child, physical, social, emotional, and mental is guided into desirable channels. Kindergarten reveals to the children the joy of learning. It offers experiences in living, working, and playing with other five-year-olds. Kindergarten helps children to develop self-expression, good work habits, wholesome attitudes, physical skills, an awareness of responsibility, and a need to cooperate. Kindergarten provides opportunities to discover, to question, to explore, to seek answers, to experience, and to create.

The pictures show only a very few of the many happy and educational experiences had by the children during the year. Activities stressing self-expression, imagination, and appreciation are all-important. Creative musical expression is provided through singing, rhythmic records, and the use of rhythm instruments. Art expression through crayons, easel paint, chalk, finger paint, clay modeling, making toys of wood, paper cutting and pasting are all experienced. Creativeness and originality are encouraged.

The kindergarten program is flexible, designed for individual development and a readiness for later academic success. Health and physical activities, language arts, science and safety, numbers, and creative activities are all subject areas adjusted to meet the needs of five-year-olds.

In the Dallas School District 265 children have just completed a happy and profitable year in kindergarten. The four teachers are: Mrs. Leila Anskis, Mrs. Joyce Gordon, Mrs. Hannah James, and Mrs. Janet Smith. William A. Austin is the Supervisor of this group.

Awards And Prizes For Cub Pack No. 233

The Pinewood Derby of Pack # 233 of Shavertown held its annual runoff at the Precone home on Overbrook Avenue on June 8 at 4 P.M.

The following received awards at the informal pack meeting: Bob-cat pin and Wolfe Book, Jimmy Cough; Lion Badge, Larry Spaciano; 2 year pin, Warren Boyes; Lion Badge, David Nauroth; Lion Badge, Jeff Gillis.

Judges for the Derby were: Joseph Precone, Cub Master; Vicent Roman, Committee Chairman; John Porter, Treasurer; Scott Wimmer; and Leo Nauroth.

The Den Champs were: Den # 1, John Porter; Den # 2, Scott Wimmer; Den # 3, Scott Bayer; Den # 4, Jeff Gillis; Den # 5, Neal Stetson; Den # 6, Donald Voelker. Each Den champion received a knife, fork and spoon kit. Pack champion was Jeff Gillis, who received a compass. Runner up was Neil Stetson who received a flashlight. The best looking car was owned by Jimmy McGough who also received a flashlight.

There were 38 cars registered and 60 persons in attendance.

The much-wanted built-in look for the kitchen is found in the new built-in gas range with tailored venting hood, flanked by gas refrigerator-freezer and cabinets.

Among the many features of the gas refrigerator-freezer, according to Frank Petrosky, residential sales manager of the Pennsylvania Gas and Water Co., is an ice-maker.

Gas-range burners and valves have been improved to a point where now it is possible to adjust the flame, previously unattainable, to new lows, he explains.

Petrosky also points out that the evolution of the gas range into an all-cooking-purpose appliance has made it unnecessary to clutter kitchens with so-called "auxiliary" cooking equipment such as plug-in broilers, rotisseries — even toasters.

See Indian Conclave At Wyalusing Soon

Feathered headdresses, peace pipes, whoops and war calls will brighten the scene and re-echo from hill to hill at Wyalusing Rocks next weekend, when thirty tribes will assemble at a Grand Council for American Indians on June 21, 22 and 23.

Making a pilgrimage to the land of their ancestors, representatives of each tribe will meet for the first time in 208 years to hold an American Indian Spiritual and Temporal Council in Pennsylvania.

Chiefs Clinton Pickard, William Pickard and Lightfoot Talking Eagle are responsible for the gathering.

An Indian village is being erected on the plateau above Wyalusing Prayer Rocks to house the several hundred Indians attending.

The three day conclave will feature tribal dances in colorful garb, teams matching each other in the ancient spirited game of lacrosse,
