PATHOS AND POVERTY
Recently, a sad situation touched me deeply. Two weeks ago I had visited Valley Crest to see Elsa Schneider and to learn that she was in serious condition. I was disturbed that she had been hospitalized and no one informed. When she was at Laurytown, such was not the case. I renewed a prior request that any change be reported promptly.
Last Sunday evening a call came that she was critical and at 5 a.m. the word that her suffering was at last ended. Then began the task of saving the tired earthly remains from the dissecting knives of a state laboratory and laying it to rest beside the husband whom she loved.
No one would assume responsibility. The DPA said it had no funds to which she was entitled, the county held itself not responsible. A call to several undertakers brought response from Kenneth Gray of Kniffen's, who joined with me and agreed to give the poor soul a Christian burial. I mentioned that Jack Shepherd of Fern Knoll had supplied a grave for her late husband, telling us at that time that one would be reserved for his widow. Mr. Shepherd again opened his heart. Mr. Gray claimed the body.
One of my associates, herself bearing grave problems, made the first contribution to a burial fund, several more added their small share. Mrs. Paterbaugh, a former kindly neighbor of the Schneiders joined in the cause and a prominent attorney, active in many community projects offered his financial aid.
The viewing was held on Tuesday evening, only a handful gathering to pay their last respects, but on the plain casket rested a sheaf of asters, sent by her former neighbors, sympathetic to Mrs. Paterbaugh's call. I was pleased that Rev. Charles Gilbert, a fellow correspondent and chaplain at Valley Crest came to bid her farewell and offer his services. She would have appreciated his continued interest.
Pastor C. Humbert, Wilkes-Barre a Lutheran clergyman, had volunteered earlier to perform the last rites for the unfortunate woman. It was as she would have wished it. Fred and I attended the services hoping that some where she might know that someone cared and at the grave another kind and good friend waited, Mrs. Joseph Neuner, who over the years had remained faithful to a forgotten soul and her neighbor, Mrs. Bond.

My appreciation also to Dick Disque, who came to our assistance while on the way to the cemetery and joined us at committal services.
Had an informative card from Scottie Alexander over the weekend telling us of his vacation highlights in Arizona. The uncomfortable hot spell is also with our western neighbors with temperatures registering 100 and over. Scott remained out there for a longer visit when his mother and Leslie returned home two weeks ago.
Sorry to have missed young Andy Roan's birthday on July 14. Belated best wishes, Andy.
