COINCIDENCE

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Geline and Louise were driving around our countryside, trying our road. They met Catherine taking the dog, and Louise recognized her as a Kingston Township amateur. So the car turned around, and Cathy and Tuffy ran to the porch for a visit. Cathy welcomed Louise around the gardens. I was telling Ralph a few things about our Dorothy, and he told me of an ancestor of his who was the first woman missionary to go to foreign parts. I said, "Let's see, would that be to China or India?" He said, "To Burma."

"I," said I, "that must have been Baptist missionary." "Right," he said. Then I told him about one of the most interesting missionaries I ever read, "The Splendor of God," which was about Adonia Judson. "This was his wife!"

DALLAS POST ADVERTISER

Yes, we had in mind for some time to get a strip of foam rubber make a pad for our porch swing which is of slats. Dallas Post tried an ad for foam rubber in sizes and shapes from the Bedding Company on South Main street, Wilkes-Barre. Sure enough it had just what we wanted. It is some odd shaped pieces I needed for odd uses. We told the man, Mr. Brown, we "saw his ad in Dallas Post." He blessed our words for mentioning the Dallas Post.

Warren Montross Re-elected Head Of Family Descendants

Descendants of Samuel, Norton, John and Elijah Montross, born and reared for the most part in the Back Mountain area, met for the 58th annual reunion at Irem Country Club Picnic Grounds, Saturday, July 21.

This year family groups arrived promptly between 1:15 and 1:30, and began immediately to push the picnic tables together and set out the baskets.

Missing from the usual crowd this year was our president of the past two years, Warren Montross, now undergoing tests and treatment for an affliction suffered during World War II. He has been shifted, and helped somewhat by many doctors at both Bronx Veterans Hospital and Wilkes-Barre Veterans, where he is presently admitted. He will probably return to the Bronx in the fall or winter months.

Wesley Himmler, Dallas, was also missed. He was hospitalized at General, undergoing tests but expected to return to daughter Alberta Oliver's home on July 23.

We were thankful to have John Montross with us again, as in the past. He too has been ill, but is quite well again with pills and a restricted diet to help him along.

Helen Himmler Eggleston conducted the business meeting, minutes of 1962 were read by Helen Williamson, secretary and treasurer's report by John Montross.

Warren Montross was reelected president by unanimous vote, as we silently prayed for his return to more normal health and the ability to serve next July. Helen Eggleston was reelected vice president and her daughter, Nancy

Food Brands—A manufacturer's brand is a nationally advertised food brand, found in many different types of retail outlets, explains Harold Neigh, Penn State extension consumer economics specialist. A retailer's brand is his own private label and found only on food items in his store. Although both brands are advertised, a manufacturer's brand is likely to be advertised more often throughout the country.

Clothes-Saving Tip—To keep the shape of garments with sloped shoulder lines, hang on padded or wooden contour hangers and ease the shoulders into place, suggests Bernice Tharp, Penn State extension clothing specialist. If you don't have enough wooden hangers, tape two wire hangers together. Bend to match the shoulder line of each garment. Button the garment as you put it on a hanger.

Reading to a Child—As you read to a child, he's interested in the facts, but he also listens to the sound of words, reminds Mrs. Marguerite Duvall, Penn State extension child development specialist. In addition, he listens to the rhythm of the text and your voice, and he looks at the pictures. Storytime may give him a feeling of love and security and answer some of his questions about how things work and what people do on their jobs.

Extra Calories—No single food is fattening. It's the extra calories you get over and above your requirements that add the extra weight, says Louise Hamilton, Penn State extension nutrition specialist.

Dale And John Say It's Lucky That Clouds Veiled The Depths

More about the two wanderers, Dale Mosier and John Parry, seeing Europe through the eyes of a Youth Hostel. They are on the way home now, having sailed August 11, expecting to dock August 21.

Dale writes:

We are now in Munich with Peter Luksavage. He married Sharon Butler of Shavertown and is employed as a GE technician here. John had known both of them in America; so that is how we made this connection. They are a real nice couple and have one baby girl. Is she ever cute!

Yesterday we visited the German Museum. It was fantastic with so many mines (real life size, with actual methods), machines, planes, ships, physics, etc. I really learned a lot. Sharon and Pete were so wonderful to us that we were reluctant to leave Munich.

We boarded a train for Vienna. It is a really beautiful city (on the same level as Paris), with many palaces, monuments, museums, parks and historical buildings. We tramped over the city for two solid days, getting into museums, etc., very cheaply because of our Rotary exchange student cards. All cultural activities have large reductions for students. We took the night train in, sleeping most of the way in and out.

Before we left we bought tickets for the Vienna Philharmonic symphony orchestra, which we heard the night of our departure, in the City Hall courtyard. The music was just about perfect as you can imagine. The next morning we were still traveling in the Austrian Alps and we got a good view of them in the area of Innsbruck and Garmisch. We had a slow train so we had a lot of time to sit and enjoy the scenery.

We stopped off at Garmisch-Partkirchen and stayed in a youth hostel. We took a train up the Zugspitze, the highest mountain in Germany. At one point we had to go through a tunnel about four miles long. The train didn't go all the way up to the top though. From the end of the tracks we took a cable car up to the top.

While there we got the urge to do a bit of mountain climbing. We climbed around the peak awhile and then made an adventurous ascent of the peak beside it. It was a good thing that it was so cloudy that we couldn't see down because if we had we might have been scared even though they did have stairs cut in the whole way. However, we decided to try it again when we reached the Swiss Alps. So if you read about two American mountain climbers being heroically rescued in the Swiss Alps you will know who it is. It really was a lot of fun, though, climbing about the peak looking out and over the wide valleys or down at the clouds. It was also fairly cool on top and John and I had a good snowball fight.

We took the cable all the way down the mountain this time instead of taking the train. You can hardly notice that you are suspended about 100 feet above ground with a steel cable. It doesn't rock at all as about 45 people travel at a time. Here we were expecting a roller coaster ride.

The day before we had also been traveling through the Alps. They are magnificent. For one thing they ascend sharply and another there are many high snow-capped ranges. The houses are typical with their balconies, many flowers and immaculateness.

We both really fell in love with the Alps. They were a relief for our eyes, especially after being in Northern Europe for a year. On the way down on the cable car you could get a magnificent view. The peak had a large lake at the bottom which was a rich blue-green.

When we got back down after much ear popping and plugging we found that we had missed the 5:00 o'clock train by 5 minutes. We knew that we would be too late for dinner at 6:30 at the Youth Hostel if we waited for the 6:00 o'clock train. So we decided to hitch hike even though we had bought return tickets ($5.00). We had luck and got a ride with two American girls, who had graduated from East Stroudsburg. We got back to the Youth Hostel in time for dinner, for which we were mighty thankful.

The town itself was beautiful (it seems like I am using this word all the time, but it is no exaggeration). There were many small streets with bright, cheerfully painted half-timbered houses. Many of the houses had large paintings on the sides or wood carvings along the rafters, which added immensely to the picture. We also saw a few Swiss cows walking along the street next to the river with their large bells swinging with their motion.

Your Blue Cross

A new low cost Blue Cross benefit plan—the 30-Day Co-Op Plan—is offered to non-group members of the Blue Cross All Service 120-Day Co-Op and Regular Semi-Private Plans, as an alternative to an adjustment in their present rates. Higher rates for members of the 120-Day Co-Op and Regular Semi-Private Plans will go into effect on September 1 for monthly accounts and October 1 for quarterly accounts.

Non-group members (persons unable to join through a place of employment but billed directly at their homes) who do not wish to pay these new rates may transfer to this new 30-Day Co-Op Plan.

New monthly rates for All Service 120-Day Co-Op members are: Individual — $5.45; Parent and Child (ren) — $8.15; Family — $12.60. Former rates were $4.45; $6.70 and $10.95, respectively.

New monthly Regular Semi-Private Rates are: Individual — $4.60; Parent and Child (ren) — $6.90 and Family — $9.20. Former rates were: $3.95; $5.90, and $7.90, respectively.

Monthly rates for the new 30-Day Co-Op Plan are: Individual — $4.40; Parent and Child (ren) — $6.60 and Family — $10.65.

The new Plan is patterned after the 120-Day Co-Op Plan which provides full coverage of almost all hospital services the member requires. The only differences are: (1) 30 days of benefits per year instead of 120 days and (2) out-patient diagnostic services are available only in a hospital out-patient department. To receive these benefits the member makes a Co-Op payment of $5 per day for each day hospitalized up to a maximum of 15 days during a 12-month period for all persons listed on the Agreement.

This new 30-Day Co-Op Plan serves a dual purpose. It enables members of the All Service 120-

Fernbrook

Sincere sympathy is extended the family of the late Mrs. Sarah Moss. Mrs. Moss was indeed a very good neighbor and friend. She will be sadly missed by all who knew her.

Adult Fellowship Group will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fehlinger, East Dallas, Saturday evening at 7:45 P.M. for all those having birthdays and anniversaries in August.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. David Kitchen, Demunds Road, on the passing of Mr. Kitchen's mother, Mrs. Beulah Kitchen, in Episcopal Hospital, Philadelphia, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams and family of Hatfield have returned home after spending a week at Lake Teja, Demunds.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Harvey on the birth of a daughter, Patricia Ann.

Day Co-Op Plan

Day Co-Op Plan, who do not wish to pay the new rates, to continue to enjoy the same kind of broad protection for a shorter period—30 days per year—at a considerably lower rate. Since most members are hospitalized less than 30 days a year, this 30-Day Plan should prove adequate in most instances.

It also gives Regular Semi-Private members who wish to increase their benefits the chance to do so. Semi-private members have limited coverage of drugs, X-rays, maternity care, out-patient emergency care and out-patient minor surgery. Under the 30-Day Co-Op Plan these services are fully covered during the benefit period. Also, coverage of diagnostic services in the hospital out-patient department and a broader private room allowance are included in the new Plan.

A Merit Rating study of non-group members of the 120-Day Co-Op and Regular Semi-Private Plans shows that during the past 12 months non-group members paid $4,260,740 in membership dues to Blue Cross and received $4,969,358 for hospital care. Blue Cross paid over $700,000 more for hospital care than was received in membership payments from non-group members, an average payment of $1.17 for each $1.00 received.

"It should be pointed out that there is more to this than simply an adjustment in Blue Cross rates," commented Mr. Bell. "The quality and quantity of hospital care and Blue Cross benefits are increasing. Hospitals are providing better care, and Blue Cross members are receiving more benefits than ever before. As hospitals improve their services, their charges likewise increase."
