Party Punch Lines

When a certain busy party skips on breakfast she's apt to lack punch the rest of the day. Coffee Eggnog goes a long way to solve the breakfast problem for a student on the run. Coffee gives a nice lift to start the day off right and instant coffee makes this eggnog quick and easy to fix for the whole family. Milk and eggs contribute special nourishment and the adventurous can add a scoop of chocolate ice cream to make it an Eggnog Float.

What, ice cream for breakfast? Well, why not? It's coo-ool!

Coffee Eggnog

- 3 eggs
- 2 to 3 tablespoons Instant Maxwell House Coffee
- 1/4 cup sugar
- Dash of salt
- 1 quart chilled milk
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Place eggs, instant coffee, sugar, and salt in bowl. Beat until coffee and sugar are dissolved. Gradually beat in the milk. Then add vanilla and mix well. Chill. Makes 4 servings, 1 cup each.

Nobody argues about gas heat (except the electric companies)

You never have to sell gas heat — or even explain it. People just naturally know gas heats best and costs less. How about electric heating? In the first place, it takes a lot of hard selling. And even if you convince prospects with the glib arguments of the electric power people, you're going to have unhappy customers when the heating bills come in. My advice to prospects and homeowners is simple. Install clean, economical gas heat. Why gamble? Just phone your heating and plumbing contractor, or Gas Company, and ask about all the benefits and advantages of gas heat.
