Mrs. Thelma D. Wilson Has Fatal Heart Attack

Mrs. Thelma D. Wilson, South Charleston, W. Va., former resident of Dallas, died Friday night, stricken with a sudden heart attack, passing away in the ambulance enroute to the hospital. She had been in poor health for some time, but had been making satisfactory progress.

She was buried yesterday afternoon at Fern Knoll, following services conducted by Rev. Russell Lawry from the Disque Funeral Home.
Mrs. Wilson, whose husband John died less than two years ago, had planned to move back here to Dallas, to be with her family. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. William Wilson, and her sister-in-law, Gertrude Wilson live on Franklin Street. During her years of residence in Dallas, she had lived close by, on Franklin Street. Her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Conley, who had cared for her mother during her illness, came in by plane from Charleston Monday evening, to stay with her grandmother, planning to return shortly.
Thelma Wilson was the daughter of the late Lundy and Agnes Wright. In South Charleston where she lived for the past twenty years, she belonged to the South Charleston Methodist Church and Order of the Eastern Star.
She leaves her daughter, Virginia; two grandchildren; a brother, Lundy Wright, of Hometown, Pa.

Principal Buda Was In Apparent Health

He was buried at Mt. Olivet yesterday morning, following services from a Kingston funeral home and a Mass of Requiem at St. Mary's Church.

Group Of Laymen Handle Services

Rev. Fred Eister reports that a group of men from Alderson Methodist Charge operated in group formation on Laymen's Sunday, visiting all four churches of the charge and taking entire responsibility for the services in each. Representing Alderson was William Kelly; Ruggles, Walter Bronson; Noxen, William Bates; Kunkle, E. R. Kerlin.
Rev. Eister, since August, has been occupying the parsonage with his wife and his son John, a junior at Lake-Lehman. Prior to that time, since accepting the pastorate last September, he commuted up from Maplewood, N. J. weekends, replacing student pastor John Stahl.
Moving back to this area is like coming home to the Eister family. Rev. Eister had the Maple Grove Charge some years ago. More recently he spent three years in Puerto Rico, not as a minister, but keeping his hand in by serving as civilian chaplain at Fort Buchanan.

J. Frank Carver, 78, Suffers Heart Attack

'It Was All A Bad Dream'

by Rev. Charles Gilbert

Many sufferers from one misfortune or another wish they could "wake up" and discover "it was all a bad dream."
The other night I found myself being chased by a playful black horse. It was upstairs in our bedroom. Finally I got tired of his antics and climbed on my bed where he couldn't get me. But on he came, through the narrow path between our two beds, and up on the bed and top of me. I struggled but couldn't move, tried to yell, but couldn't get breath enough, got mad at the horse and determined to give him a trouncing when I got out from under, but I was pinned down. In desperation, I took a deep breath and yelled, "Get that horse off of me!" And I yelled it again when I heard Ruth's voice to the rescue, "Get that horse off of me!" I cracked an eye open and saw Cathy had got up and come, and her mother was on the other side shaking me and saying, "Charlie, wake up, wake up." How silly it sounded then to tell them that a horse was on top of me and I couldn't get out. But I ought to know, I was there!
Come to think of it, no horse, not even a trick horse, could ever turn the corner at the head of our stairs even if he managed to clump up the stairs. Nor turn the other corner to get into our bedroom.
A good many times in my life I have been thankful for Ruth's understanding when she would call to me, "Charlie, wake up!" And then I'd tell her that I'd been dreaming. All I can say is that even if the horse wasn't real, it was a dream real to me. I think the big difference between what is real and what is unreal is that reality itself is eternal. Bad experiences may be real experiences, though not always dreams, but they do not last forever. You may experience pain all your life but it does not outlast you.

She leaves a sister, Alice T. Vivian, at home; a brother William, Center Moreland.
