SINUSITIS Sinusitis is literally an inflammation of the mucous membranes of the accessory nasal sinuses. The sinuses or "paranasal sinuses," are cavities in the bones of the head, adjacent to the nostrils. These cavities are lined with a mucous membrane which is continuous with that in the nasal cavity and thus mucus is discharged from this membrane in the sinuses, just as it is in nasal cavity.

soon filled, with considerable pain the result in practically all cases, and infection ensues. This infection is known as sinusitis. Chiropractic procedure is based upon the fact that the function of the mucous membrane lining of the sinus cavities is controlled through nerves, and is directed to stimulating the action of these nerves to the result, that the inflammatory process is halted and normal function resumed.

Regardless of the contributory cause, chiropractic procedure affords the quickest and surest means of clearing up the condition and preventing development either of a chronic condition or of the more serious ills which can stem from this trouble. See your doctor of Chiropractic, both for the sinus and for the headache that many times accompanies this condition.

When the mucous membrane of the nasal cavity becomes congested and swollen, the tiny opening into the sinuses become obstructed due to the swelling, and therefore the sinuses can no longer drain. With the increased production of mucus, they are
