Your Health

Ninety five per cent of pneumococcal pneumonia cases recover, properly treated with penicillin.

Untreated pneumonia of this type is fatal in from 20 to 40 per cent of cases.

Until about twenty-five years ago, pneumonia had been claiming approximately one quarter of its victims, and it was the sulfonamide drugs of the late 1930's that lowered the fatality rate to about 10 percent.

Later, the introduction of penicillin and other antimicrobial drugs in the treatment of pneumonia, further lowered the death rate.

Pneumonia was known to Hippocrates, more than 2,000 years ago, but its cause was not established until late in the nineteenth century.

Pneumonia of the pneumococcal type is an acute bacterial infection of the lungs and comes on suddenly with chills, fever, chest pain, cough and bloody sputum.

While pneumonia occurs in apparently normal people there are a large number of predisposing factors likely to have an effect on the outcome of the disease and its recurrence.

These underlying conditions need to be identified and treated and they include antibiotic therapy, supportive measures, and treatment of complications.

Complications are estimated to occur in about 20 per cent of cases, and commonly include pleurisy and emphysema.

Plan Early For Visit To The World's Fair

Make your plans well in advance if you intend to visit the New York World's Fair of 1964-1965.

World's Fair officials estimate that the average visitor would need 10 to 12 full days to make a complete tour of this New York extravaganza, the biggest world's fair in history.

Persons in the Back Mountain who plan to visit the fair will find information at Galland-Steinhauer, Inc. Insurance Agency, 226 Wyoming Avenue, Kingston, an official center designated by the World's Fair Corporation.

The public is invited to visit the agency for free literature on the fair. To date arrangements have been made with more than 15 local organizations for the showing of the half hour color, sound, slide preview being made available free by the local Galland-Steinhauer Inc. office.

More than 200 major exhibitors from throughout the world will participate in the fair which opens April 22.

"According to most recent figures," says Extension Director T. H. Patton, The Pennsylvania State University, "the average American ate 96 pounds of beef last year. This is a new record.

FARM NEWS

INTEREST IN growing in slotted floor systems for all kinds of animals. Slats have already found a permanent place in pork production. Now beef feeders and dairymen are trying slats.

There are four main reasons for the use of slats for livestock and dairy. 1. The trend to confinement is increasing. 2. Slotted floors permit extremely high concentrations of animals. 3. Slats lend themselves to controlled environment installations. 4. These floors reduce labor requirements of waste removal.

Dairymen and beef feeders who are working with slotted floors find that slats 3 and one-half to 4 inches wide at the top are doing well. They should be spaced 1 1/2 inches apart for most effective self-cleaning. And the slats should also be about one half inch narrower at the bottom. Many users have liquid manure systems beneath the slats. Some also have pits deep enough for emergency access by tractors.

Enterprising livestock and dairy producers are installing slats. More will be learned from experience, but slats are here to stay.

First Yellow Crocus

First yellow crocus, flanked by a snowdrop and heralded by a mourning dove, gladdened the heart of "Aunt Jo" Norton on Huntsville Road Tuesday morning.

Right after Aunt Jo called, there was a rash of newly hatched croci. Mrs. Fred Welsh, who had covered her sprouting crocus leaves with hemlock boughs when the snow started to go off in February, found not only yellow crocus in bloom on Sunday, but two purple jobs.

Now, bring on those big fat robins, and we've got it made.

Area Gets A Breather

The Back Mountain, after a sub-zero night on Friday which kept service stations busy Saturday morning, enjoyed a mild weekend, with temperatures rising to the mid-fifties by Tuesday, and snow melting like magic.
