a Dogs CARS, THE GREATEST SINGLE THREAT TO DOG'S LIVES

674-5656

By Bob Bartos, Manager Friskies Pet Foods Research Center Automobiles are responsible for more dog deaths and injuries than any other single cause. And since dogs are not wise to this fact and many will trot along the side or center of a busy highway, blissfully unaware of the danger, it's up to you, the owner, to protect your dog. It's particularly impersitive new during larly imperative now during the summer months when the hazard is multiplied by summer vacationists speeding to their destinations. So if you value the life of your pet, as well as those of up trying to avoid your dog, confine him.

There are three ways of doing this. The first is through training—teaching the dog the boundaries of his own land, and correcting him each time he ignores them. If this does not succeed and he persists in sneaking off, you have no al-ternative but to resort to methods two or three.

Method two is to fence in the yard or build a fenced-in it, and deep enough in the ground so that he can't dig under it and escape.

Method three is to make him strictly a house dog and exercise him regularly three or Drainfields
