I wouldn't dare tell the psychiatrists at this Mental Health Workshop what a mix-up I had in my dream last night, but I'll share it with you-all. I dreamt I was over at the office of The Dallas Post trying to write up my news items. Now listen to this: I couldn't find a scrap of paper to put in the typewriter over there. Not a scrap at The Dallas Post! Myra couldn't find any for me either. Ruth's sister was there using one of the typewriters. Then in all my search for a blank piece of paper — of which there are stacks and stacks in real life — I discovered gathering group of Oratorio chorus members for some kind of rehearsal, and of course Catherine was with them. But out in the street in front of the office were six or seven pianos which some members of the chorus had brought along just in case there was no piano.

It occurs to me that if there should happen to be a surplus of pianos in the streets over at Dallas our Mt. Zion church needs one donw in the Sunday School room. And that's no dream!

Which reminds me that I must get my ticket for the Three-Point Plant and Quarry - Chase Men's Supper at Orange, Saturday night, October 17. Me what start-
