

SHAVERTOWN

The New Highway
The dedication ceremonies on the new highway went along fine on Wednesday with lots of politicians and various organization representatives on hand to enjoy the cocktail hour and luncheon which followed the ribbon cutting.

Some older residents in the area were under the impression that they would be picked up to participate in the parade which was actually a motorcade. One indignant daughter called the Post to complain because her mother was forgotten. I did not read any announcement of such plans in any notice published, but I am sure that Mrs. Granville Sowden had been left in charge of dedication proceedings there would have been some changes. However, the Motor Club had the do-re-mi to put on a big affair, and the township certainly couldn't have raised a like amount.

There were those of us who regretted the change. We felt that the township supervisors and Mr. Sowden should have at least been in a prominent spot in the pictures, to say the least.

The designer said it would prove a safer road and we surely hope so, but ambulance crews are expecting added calls when the weather gets slippery, and there are many who were sadly displaced and yet others who cleared a nice profit on the sale of highway properties. It remains to be seen how much new business will relocate along the Kingston Township end of the line, but we hear that this is the price of progress.

Let me note here a thoughtful gesture on the part of Mr. Sowden, who came over to the press table and sent a cigar down to my husband in Geisinger Hospital, showing his concern for the other fellow at the time of big doings. It was certainly appreciated, Gran.

More and more delay on the traffic lights. Probably by winter time they may be installed unless bad weather holds the installation up again.

We understand that the accident Tuesday night in which Mr. Coslett figured wasn't his fault and despite the prominent notice the next day that he had really wrecked the police cruiser, it certainly didn't seem serious to those who saw it in use on the highway.

Perhaps a little ease in pressure from a certain official might help ease the assistant chief's nerves during a trying period. A little understanding helps all of us in time of trouble.

Helen and Ted Poad attending the Republican Rally at the Armory on Saturday evening were much impressed with Governor Scranton. Helen says he is better than ever, less and dynamic, which would point to his selection as a presidential candidate again in four years.

Mary Lou Bucan has a most attractive shop and I understand she is doing a nice business in knitting needs.

Meet After 20 Years
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clements, Glendale, Cal., were welcome guests of Carl Hirner for several days last week. Clements was a war buddy of Carl's during World War II when they served together in Iceland and overseas, and they had much to reminisce about since they had not seen each other for 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hontz entertained Carl and his guests at dinner one evening during the visit. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson and son Ronald, Kingston.

Mr. Clements showed slides of various spots he had visited since he is now retired and devotes much time to his hobby of photography.

The caveman approach to love has been frowned on for 2000 years. The Roman poet Ovid told swains to be thoughtful, gentle and well-groomed—he advised a mouthwash! Colgate 100, a new mouthwash, helps modern men get the girl.

Mr. Hirner who has lived in the Back Mountain for a long time is well known as a top bowler and excellent chef, his big job yearly being the Men's Brotherhood Roast Beef Dinners, which I understand was fine as usual on Saturday evening. Sorry to have missed it this time but my weekend was spent in Danville.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hill entertained at a turkey dinner on Sunday for the latter's father, Harry Redmond and John Clause, who were both celebrating birthdays. Also present were Jay C. and Tommy Hill, Brenda Claude, Mrs. John Clause and Roy Redmond.

Mrs. John Stahl left last week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Evans and family in Connecticut. Mr. Stahl will drive up today to pick up Harriet and they will go on to Boston to visit son, Rev. John Stahl and family at Boston.

Harry Alberts is still a patient at General Hospital.

OUTDOOR TIPS

LEECH TRICK
It will never become a national sport but some fishermen like to use leeches for bait because the fish love 'em. Use rubber gloves when you handle the ugly things and they won't attach to you.

STEEL WOOL SPARKLE
Campers! Your pots and pans can have that coveted steel wool sparkle if you'll carry your soap in prepared steel wool pads. Plenty better than trying to scour pans with regular soap which is bulky to carry anyway.

SHEAR STUPIDITY
If your motor uses shear pins, it's "shear" stupidity not to tape a couple of spares on the motor's shaft.

SLICK COAT
Old coon hunters wear slicker-type raincoats in the woods. Doesn't catch on brains and sticks.

IT'S A CLINCH
Clinch sinkers break after use. To keep serviceable, drive a nail through and loop a copper wire through the hole.

COOL CRAWLERS
If you want to keep night-crawlers alive for a good while and can't use a worm box, put them in your refrigerator next to (but not in) the freezing unit. They'll live for two weeks.

FLASH LIGHT
Take a three cell flashlight to camp but store a two cell bulb in handle holder. When light fades, restore it by switching to the two-cell.

THIRST QUENCHER
On hot days when you can't seem to get enough to drink, add a pinch of salt to your water. Lack of salt, curiously enough, causes the thirst.

BARBEQUE
Clean barbeque grills quickly by starting the fire with a layer of sand. Add coals to this. When you want to clean the grill, sand spills out easily takes grease, burned coals etc. with it.

MAGNETIC NEEDLE
Magnetize a needle in your sewing kit by rubbing it over regular magnet. Float on a twig in woods and it will tell you which way is north.

GOLDEN MINNOWS
Dye minnows a different color to get bites during dog days. Gold is most often chosen, but red and even blue also works. Just add vegetable dye from 10-cent store to minnow bucket water. Skin from orange onions gives gold color.

FARM CALENDAR

Always Label Poisons and Explosives — Keep them away from children. It may be safer to destroy the little that is left around than to run risk of children or animals getting to them before they are needed next season.

Make Compost — Collect falling leaves of shade trees and shrubs and pile them on a compost heap rather than burn them, reminds J. Lincoln Pearson, extension floriculturist at The Pennsylvania State University. When the leaves are decayed, this material forms an excellent mold to use for repotting house plants, or topdressing around choice perennials.

Plow Under Residues — Crop residues and weeds should be plowed under rather than burned this fall. They usually add organic matter and plowing under helps kill insects and diseases especially if the ground freezes to plow depth or deeper, reminds J. O. Dutt, extension vegetable crops specialist at The Pennsylvania State University. Rotation of crops also helps to keep down both insects and diseases on next year's crop.

Heat Lowers Egg Quality — Unheated basements can be used for egg storage, says Carl O. Dossin, extension poultry specialist at The Pennsylvania State University. However, in cold weather, when basements are heated they're not suitable, so he suggests poultrymen find a better place.
