Beaumont

The Annual Salvation Army Christmas Appeal netted $103.00. Sincere thanks are due the donors of Beaumont and Centerville and who made this amount possible. Eighty per cent of this amount was sent to headquarters at Philadelphia with twenty per cent remaining here for local use. At Christmas a family of children in Centerville and a family in Beaumont were remembered by the local service unit of the Salvation Army whose slogan this year was "May you be filled with happiness because you remembered someone else!"
Local College students who enjoyed their holiday vacations were: Bloomsburg — Charles Smith; Lock Haven — Judy Balewski; Mansfield — Joyce Smith; Michigan — Carolyn Dietz; Penn State — David Downs; Robert Belles, Paul Brown, and Barbara Hadsall.
Morgan V. Lewis, who is pursuing studies for his doctorate in psychology at Penn State, has been accepted for a teaching assignment at Penn State. Morgan spent the holidays with his sister's family, the Warren Johnsons.

Book Club Elects Officers, Enjoys Annual Gala Tea And Carol Singing

At its customary Christmas tea, last Monday afternoon, the Library Book Club elected officers, and enjoyed a Christmas talk given by Rev. Robert D. Yost, pastor of Shavertown Methodist Church.
Rev. Yost read from John Milton, "On the Morn of Christ's Nativity" and from a number of other famous authors, ending with the reminder that love is all the law we really need, and begging that Christmas become not merely a matter of merchants trafficking.
Recommended books for Christmas reading included "The Long Christmas" by Ruth Sawyer; "Fire-side Book of Christmas Stories;" "Christmas at Dingley Dell;" "Crick-et on the Hearth;" "Why the Chimney Rang;" Hans Christian Anderson's "The First Christmas Tree;" Charles Dickens' Christmas Stories; Richardson Wright's "Days of Christmas."
Mrs. George Montgomery was elected president, succeeding Mrs. Paul Gross; Mrs. George Jacobs, vice president; Mrs. James Alexander, secretary. Mrs. Herman Thomas retains the office of treasurer.

The Book Club will serve refreshments at the annual meeting of Friends of the Library, January 28 at 8 p.m. in the Annex.
Mrs. J. Traver Nobel accompanied the group in singing of favorite Christmas carols.
Presiding over the tea table, gay with red candles in brass candlesticks and a centerpiece of holly and fruit, were Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Gross, recently elected and retiring presidents.
Co-chairmen of refreshments were Mrs. Fred Howell and Mrs. Raymon Hedden.
Enjoying the holiday spirit were Mesdames Robert Scott, Earl Phillips, John Wilson, Homer Moyer, T. E. Hefferman, Ornan Lamb, Herman Thomas, John P. DeWitt, Lyda B. Smith, J. Stanley Rinehimer, Stanley B. Davies, Edgar Brace, Arch Hutchison, Dana Crump, and those already named.

Watch When You Park Your Car

For some drivers parking in a public lot can be very expensive. Motorists return to their cars to find scratched and dented doors, cracked headlights and sometimes even worse damage.
What's more, the unlucky driver may not discover the damage until he gets home. When he returns to the parking lot for an explanation, he is told: "Sorry, but we didn't do it. If we had, you'd have noticed it when you picked your car up."

1. Check your car's condition before you turn it over to the parking lot and inspect it when you pick the car up.
2. Lock all valuables in the trunk. Leave unlocked so the attendant can drive the car and take the keys with you.
3. Before you leave the lot, open the trunk if you've left valuables in it and inspect the car for damage. If anything is wrong, file a notice of damage or theft with the attendant. Phone the lot's corporate office to notify the management of your claim.
4. If you suspect internal damage, call a mechanic and stay at the lot until he inspects the car and gives you a written diagnosis. Then have the parking lot manager and attendant sign the mechanic's appraisal.

The hidden dangers of public parking are described in the article "The Appalling Price of Public Parking" by James Joseph in the current issue of Home & Highway, official publication of the Allstate Insurance Companies.
Parking lot damage annually runs into millions of dollars. Even minor damage can be costly. A nicked door may cost $25, a deep scratch may be $30 and a dented fender as much as $50. The total damage to parked cars is never really known since many drivers don't report it. Even if there are no visible signs of damage, your car may have "internal injuries" that are far more serious. Transmissions have been crippled by attendants who shift into reverse while still going forward.
Trying to collect from a parking lot for damage to your car may be impossible. Parking concerns carry liability insurance to protect themselves, but you may have to sue to collect. Some large parking concerns insure themselves against customer damage complaints.
The parking lot operator can not disclaim full responsibility for your car. How much he can be held responsible for depends on state and local laws. He is liable for your car, its tools and accessories, and he may be responsible for articles left in the car.
To protect yourself against parking lot troubles, Home and Highway recommends the following points:
