Editorially Speaking Chickens Come Home To Roost

Every once in awhile a telephone subscriber refuses to release a line so that an emergency call can go through. Perhaps this leads to nightmares in the days after a fire, but nightmares do not undo the damage.

We recall one incident many years ago, when a house burned to the ground because the woman who was trying to reach the fire department was brushed off with a, "You can just wait until I'm through talking, and I don't believe you've got a fire anyhow." GET OFF THE LINE.

Printed clearly in the front of the telephone book is this message:

"Any person who wilfully refuses to relinquish immediately a party line when informed that it is needed for an emergency call to a fire department, a police department, or for medical aid or ambulance service, is guilty of an offense, and is subject to a fine or imprisonment or both. It is also an offense, subject to the same penalties, to obtain the use of a party line by falsely stating that it is needed for such an emergency call."

The penalty should have more teeth in it. A fine of $50 is small retribution for actions leading to the loss of a human life or the destruction of a home by fire.

You will have to trust your neighbors not to break in on a phone call unless the need is urgent. There are those who will do exactly that.

But far better to hang up in the middle of a conversation than to have it on your conscience that five additional minutes MIGHT have rushed oxygen to a man gasping with a heart attack.

HANG UP IMMEDIATELY.
And if your neighbor is playing you for a sucker, that's just too bad... for him.

Because chickens have a nasty way of coming home to roost.

Only Yesterday

Ten, Twenty and Thirty Years Ago In The Dallas Post

30 Years Ago

The Dallas area was recovering from heavy rains which over four days totaled more than six inches. There were floods in many places, causing much crop loss, but the area escaped in better shape than the rest of the country.

Charges of dirty politics flew as no successor was appointed to replace Elmer Kerr, state health officer of the Back Mountain area, who was recently dismissed.

A local family, recently moved to Florida, returned bereaved to the area. Buddy Dressel, 11, died of acute appendicitis compounded by malaria a mere six weeks after his family left Dallas.

Development of the Kitchen Creek state park was ready to begin. Died: Mrs. Guida Lee, 57, a 33-year resident of Dallas; Mrs. Anna Hancock, 75, of Wilkes-Barre, of heat exhaustion at Harveys Lake.

20 Years Ago

Two Lehman boys took a 400 mile tour of Pennsylvania and Maryland -- on bicycles. Alden Wagner Jr., 15, and Charles Nuss Jr., 14, made the trip in two weeks. They visited many points of interest between Dallas and Baltimore, including Harrisburg, Fort McHenry, and Gettysburg.

The new dining center at Lehman High School was dedicated. Lewis LeGrand was elected Secretary of the Dallas School Board. He replaced Daniel Waters, who had resigned.

Lehman Township Schools lost three teachers to larger school districts. Leaving were William Crum, acting high school principal, John Sidler, and Mabel Bellas.

In The Outpost: Robert Prynn and Ted Schwartz, California; James Harris, New York; Joseph Hardisky, South Carolina; Fuller Dymond, Maryland; Earl Taylor, Georgia; Edward Condiff, Bob McCarty, and Eugene Fogle, California; W. She Is 80 Years Old, But Still Eager To Master New Craft, Hooking Rugs

Visitors to the Art Booth at the Library Auction were impressed with the display of hooked rugs, rugs in the making, and patchwork quilts.

They were familiar, through the Dallas Post and through personal contact, with the past-master of rug-hooking in the Back Mountain, Mrs. Leroy Brown of Lehman.

But they were astounded at the revelation that Mrs. Brown's eighty-year old sister, Mrs. Edna DeLyns, had recently taken up the art of rug making, adding this craft to her life-long pleasure of making patchwork and applique-work quilts and coverlets.

At a time when many eighty-year old women are pulling down the shades and buttoning themselves into tight little cocoons of nonentity, this soft-spoken woman is branching out into another field, one which is definitely allied with the quilting in its feeling for design and color.

Her rugs are beautiful. Her patchwork quilts, made painstakingly over a long period of years, are beautiful.

But neither are as beautiful as the woman herself, for she is lighted by an inner radiance.

She looks out of a wide window into the blue distances, and she recites the first verse of her favorite Psalm: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, whence cometh my strength."

From her earliest years, she was taught that "Satan still can find some work for idle hands to do," and her mother expected her to occupy herself with knitting, or crocheting, or rolling balls of rags for rugs, at such times as she was not reading or studying.

"Expected" is the operative word. Not "insisted," or "coaxed," or "bribed," but "Expected."

Born into a family which appreciated art and literature, which soberly and thoughtfully took the long trek West in a covered wagon to found a new home, the small Edna was brought up in an atmosphere which thanked God for being free in a land of freedom, and made his contribution to its chosen community by erecting solid masonry, and building an even more substantial heritage for the future in the shape of character.

Volumes could be written. Mrs. Leroy Brown has notes. She is being urged to make of them a book.

To return to the quilts. They are of many patterns, some gay, some subdued, but every tiny stitch is by hand.

There is a grape pattern on heavenly blue, with each small grape cunningly padded to rise slightly above the surface. The first edition, Mrs. Brown explains, was worn out by the smoothing of loving hands.

There are all the old fashioned patterns as well as those of more modern design.

And it all started with a small girl who made her first "nine-patch" when she was six years old, instructed by a mother who held with no slipshod work, and who required little Edna to make her seams sure and true, "to the glory of God."

Street, Trucksville, was brought home from General Hospital, Bob Carey and Shel Bennett attending.

Crew for accident at Chase Saturday: Youngblood, Arnold and Marv Yeust.

Donald Voelker, Shavertown, was brought home from Nesbitt Hospital Sunday, Robert Voelker and Bill Frederick attending.

THANKS, JIM DEVLIN!

The deepest gratitude of the Dallas Post and members of Back Mountain Memorial Library is extended to Jim Devlin of Graphic Arts for his very generous donation of all Auction cuts published both before and after the Auction.

"Shucks," said Jim, "our kids love the Library!"

Joins Gas And Water Co.

Mrs. Ostrowski is a native of Sellersville, Pa., graduated from Lake-Lehman High School and Bob Jones University.

Clarence Laidler On Luzerne Co. Zoning

Clarence Laidler, Pioneer Avenue, finding retirement from the Miners National Bank a bore, is now about to enter a new field, that of County Zoning official.

He started work Monday morning in another bank, where offices of Luzerne County Zoning Commission are located at Northeastern National in Public Square.

Mr. Laidler, who with the late William Krimmel launched the first trial balloon for zoning in Dallas Township, is on familiar ground. He has taken work at Wilkes to update himself on the situation.

Appointment was made Wednesday morning at a meeting of the Zoning Commission.

the car, picture, or the antique that will be chanced off during last night of the auction. Finally about 1 a.m. everything comes to a close. Still the work is not finished. There are tents to be taken down. Then the money is counted and at a future meeting, each committee brings their money and tells how much they made. Then early in August the final count is made of everything.

There is a lot of time, effort, and a lot of hard work done during the year, as well as having a ball.

Editorial Comment: Jim had a flock of fun behind the auction block. We're recommending that he get a spelling book and hone up, however, if he wants to make the pages of the Dallas Post. Honestly! He's the original Cheerful Cherub.

Sidler Regrets Passing Of Blue Ridge Chapter

With elimination of the Vocational Agricultural program at Lake-Lehman, John Sidler is now enabled to spend the entire four weeks of the workshop at Wisconsin State University, instead of the expected three weeks.

He and his wife left Wednesday for River Falls, expecting to return after the institute' by way of Canada, taking in Niagara Falls.

Last year Mr. Sidler was not eligible for the Institute. This year, having taught classes in Science and mathematics, he could get a grant from the National Science Foundation of enough to live on during the four weeks, with tuition thrown in.

Mr. Sidler regrets the passing of the Blue Ridge FFA, which he set in motion in 1939. No agricultural program, spells no Future Farmers of America in this area.

He remembers with pleasure that some of his students bought heifers from the Goodleigh Farm prize herd of Guernseys before the animals were shipped to Allentown for auction. Among them were Joseph Roginski, Howard Platt Jr., and Wayne Rosengrant.

Some of the Blue Ridge boys bought cattle, also, during the years between 1945 to 1957, when Mr. Sidler was not at Lehman. The Macri farm at Pikes Creek has purchased stock from Goodleigh.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sedler Has Fatal Heart Attack

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Sedler, East Dallas, suffered a fatal heart attack at her home last Tuesday afternoon. When found by her three nephews from Philadelphia who were spending the summer with her, the coroner Richard Disque was called.

Mass Requiem was celebrated Saturday morning at St. Therese's church, followed by burial at Mount Olivet.

Until a few years ago, Mrs. Sedler had been employed as a seamstress at Strawbridge and Clothier's Philadelphia.

She was a native of Luzerne, daughter of the late John and Susan Sedler.

Surviving are: a niece, Mrs. Martha Parkes, Philadelphia; two brothers, Michael of Dallas and Frank, California; nephews: Richard, Robert and Frank Sedler, Philadelphia.

Squirrel Phones Parents Long-Distance From India

Stefan Hellersperk was a few minutes late at the Auction Barn last Wednesday morning, arriving in a state of delicious excitement.

Seems Squirrel had called from India, and it took half an hour to get a good connection.

Squirrel's parents shared the telephone receiver. Squirrel is with the Dharuvan Power Plant, Kaira District, Juravan, India, installing a boiler for Foster Wheeler.

Absent since Christmas, he asked about the Library Auction, former friends and classmates, said he was enjoying his stay, and didn't know when he would be home again.
