

Truck Cab Tucked Into Parlor

Cab of this tractor-trailer is neatly tucked away in the parlor of the Noxen home -- so neatly that it has hardly disturbed the outer wall at right.

A by-stander remarked to the Dallas Post, first on the scene: "Frankly I've never seen anything like it -- have you?"

Truck rammed the home of Mrs. Christine Rauch on Market Street, where Route 29, the Tunkhannock road, meets it, across from Noxen Clinic, around 2:45 Friday morning.

Fire officials, on the scene to take precautions and keep traffic orderly, said Mrs. Rauch had come down from her bedroom before the truck struck and had returned from the area hit only minutes before the accident. Nose of the truck rested in the area of her favorite chair.

Noxen people who heard the crash said it sounded rather as though some one had merely scraped a wheel on the creek bridge. Brake failure was said to be responsible for the runaway scrap iron truck hauling from South Gibson to Milton. It passed the stopsign, scraped an enormous tree in the front yard, and travelled about 30 feet out of control before impact.
