SPORTSMANS CORNER

 District Game Protector Edward Gdoski, Dallas, said that in his district west of the Susquehanna River in Luzerne County, big game hunting, turkey hunting and grouse hunting looks very promising this year. "I have made several trips to State Game Land 57 which lies in Luzerne and Wyoming Counties. While on these trips we have observed different flocks of turkeys and also many signs of bear utilizing our berry crop. Also in other sections of my district I have noticed an increase in our grouse population."

District Game Protector Howard W. Bower Jr. had this to say "Working with both wildlife and the public involves many humorous and unusual circumstances. Every game protector is long accustomed to being referred to by many different names. References to game warden, ranger and rabbit cop are commonplace. My feelings really suffered however, when on three separate complaints this past month I was referred to as the 'Squirrel Man'." (Just think, Howard; it must take a "Nut Man" to know.)
