

Food Service Is Starred At H-S

Dallas Senior High School cafeteria was a beehive of activity Monday night, as members of the School Food Service Association of Luzerne County gathered to see a demonstration of the making of a popular school cafeteria main dish, and to take a look at the new convection oven, shown by cafeteria manager Frank Hemingway.

Fifty people sat down to a meal featuring Lasagna, following a social hour, where Mrs. Nancy Goeringer, instructor in Home Economics, had arranged a punch table with a whimsical chef centerpiece.

Host for the evening was Milani Foods, Hazleton and Williamsport were represented as well as nearer districts.

Dallas High School has a course designed for students who expect to enter the field of restaurant or hotel management in varying capacities. In addition to academic work required for graduation, they receive vocational training, three periods a week in specialized Home Economics under Mrs. Goeringer.

These vocational students helped in arrangement of tables and preliminary work, and two of them, Kathy Scoble and Tom Myers, manned the K. P. afterwards.

Seniors who take the course are Bonnie Barnard, Beverly Dickson, Martha McCoy, Kathy Scoble, and Richard Phillips.

The two-year program has already led to jobs, part-time, for some of the students, and a potential career in hotel management for one who is already studying at Paul Smith College, Robert Dolbear, son of assistant High School Principal Mr. Dolbear.

Working part time at Greenbriar Lodge is Richard Phillips; part-time at Forty-Fort Dairy Bar, Ronald Appel and Gary Harris.

Ruggles
