The Living Desert, was presented to the student body. It was a Walt Disney production that told of the Great American Desert. The film showed the plants, wild life, and insects of this area. Mr. Samuel Davenport and Mr. John Jenkins were in charge of this assembly.

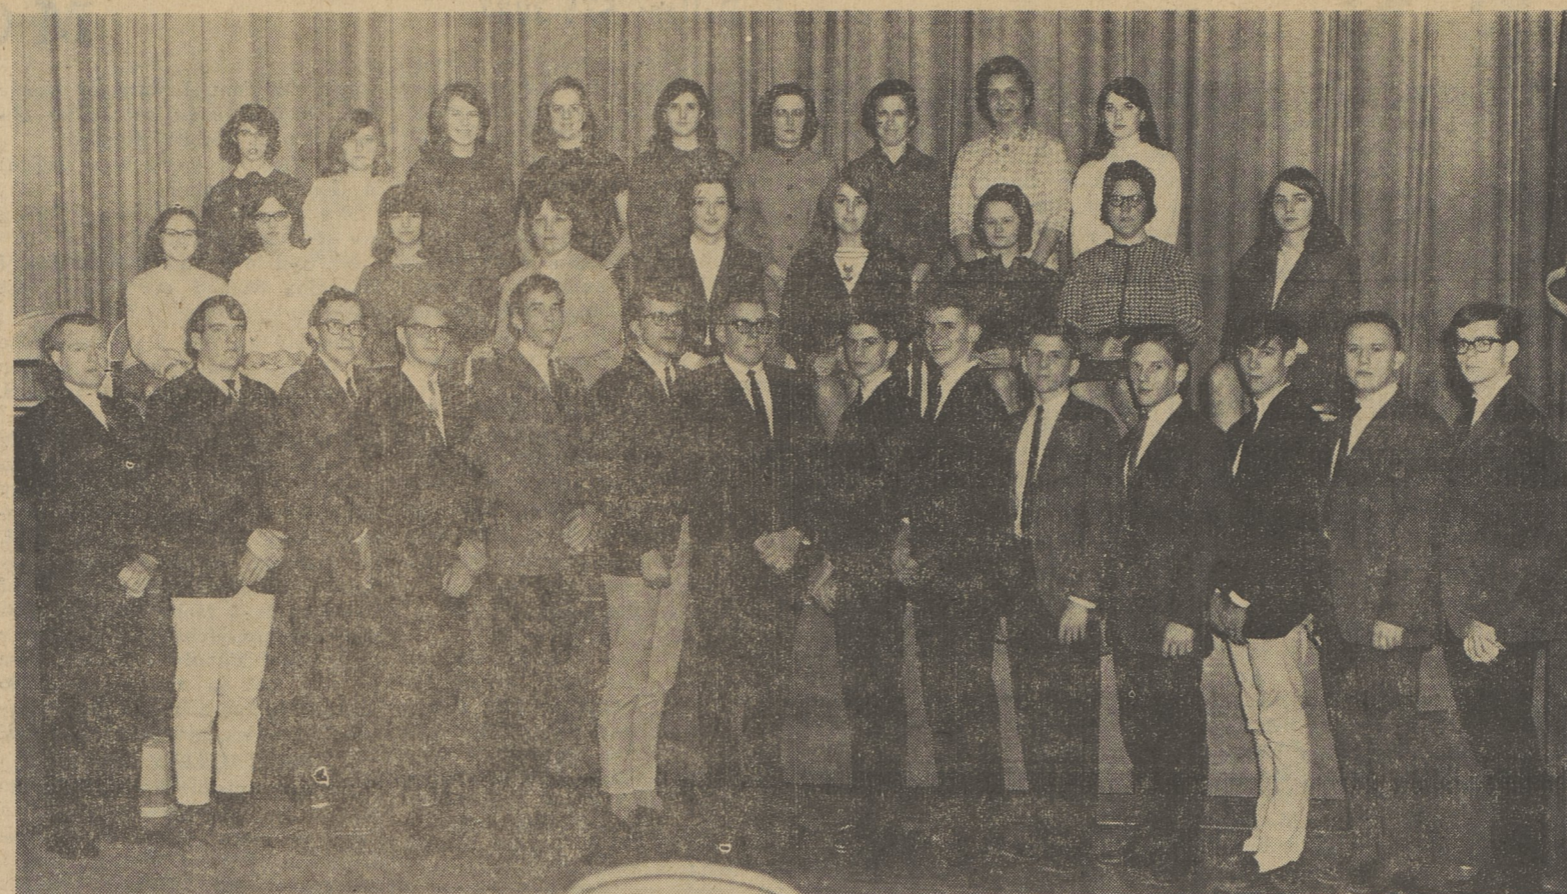

The second junior class ring order was taken from January 17 to 21. The order will be received in the spring. Mr. Francis Wilczewski was in charge.

Lake-Lehman will have ten student teachers from College Misericordia. They are: Marianne Donohoe—History and Political Science, Kathleen Gallagher — Math and Physics, Carole Gennaro — English and Journalism, Anne Giacalone — Music Education, Josephine Greslita — Math and General Science, Mary Kilgallen — English and German, Michelline Kmush — Spanish and Latin, Irene Krumm — Biology and General Science, Carol Savellano — Chemistry and Math, and Mary Carol Vincenti — Music Education. They will be here for eight weeks during the second semester.

On Wednesday evening, January 12, thirty-two seniors traveled to Bloomsburg State College where they viewed Twelfth Night. The play was presented with a Shakespearean set and costumes. The students enjoyed themselves and thought it a worth-while experience.

The matmen were defeated by Wyalusing on Monday, January 10, 23-17, at Lake-Lehman.

First Annual Presentation Of Drill Team Letters

The First Annual Presentation of Drill Team letters was held last Thursday night at Dallas Senior High School. Many drill team members and their parents and friends were in attendance as letters were presented to thirty-four senior students who have marched with the units from one to three years. Films and slides were shown of the Denver trip made by the Key Club Rifle team four years ago and of parades attended by the units over the last four years.

Mrs. Cora Hill awarded letters to six members of the Colorettes who will graduate in June and have been with the group for three years. They are Constance Billig, Patricia Peiffer, Sandra Turner, Eva Kozemchak, Nancy Romanchick and Sharon Wagner.

Mrs. Doris Mallin presented thirteen letters to seniors who will leave the Keyettes this spring. Bonnie Barnard, Reba Heidel, Joyce Hughes, Cynthia Konsavage, Martha McCoy, Linda Nicol, Linda Parry, Deborah Penman, Margaret Reese have been members for three years; Barbara Dorrance joined a year ago. Ann Barnes and Marcia Checkon marched with the team for two years and served one year as co-captains. Jeris Jordan marched with the Keyettes two years and served last year as captain of the Junior High Girls' team.

Mr. George McCutcheon gave letters to fifteen members of the Key Club Rifle Drill Team. All will graduate in June. Scott Alexander, William Kyle, John Butler, George Mahler, Philip Mathers, Raymond McClary, James Nixon, Todd Richards, Donald Rood, James Snyder, Russell Williams all marched with the unit three years. James Yarnal received a one year letter. Thomas Rowett, Daniel Sinicropo and Jeffrey Townsend received three year letters; Rowett served as captain of the Senior High team last year, Townsend was captain of the color guard and Sinicropo captained the Junior High

Assembly

An Assembly honoring the football team was held on Friday afternoon, January 14th. The team this year is tied for the pennant with Forty Fort High School. We are very proud of them, and wish to show appreciation with awards of letters and jackets.

College, Nursing, Technology

Throughout the year we will continue with our list of the students in the class of 1966 who have been accepted at higher institutions of learning in their fields. Those students are as follows: Connie Billig-Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, Edwin Raub-Industrial Management Institute, Reading, Pa.; Todd Richards-Susquehanna University; Mark Van Etten-Industrial Management Institute, Reading, Pa.; Alan Reese-Industrial Management Institute, Reading, Pa.; Stanley D. Dorrance-University of Akron; Sharon Wagner-General Hospital; Elva Costello, Wilkes College; Mary Jane Antanitis-Wilkes College; Linda Taylor-Geisinger Hospital and Williamsport Hospital; Ann Barnes-Baldwin Wallace College; Jeris Jordan and Patricia Bauman-Rotary Exchange students; Mark Peleak-Industrial Management Institute; Burton Schell-Industrial Management Institute; James Snyder-Wilkes-Barre Business College; James Steinhauer-Wilkes College; Patricia Bauman-Wilkes College; James Williams-Wilkes College; Robert Wiley-Bethlehem Business College; Helen Edwards-Wilkes College; Raymond McClary-Wilkes College; Russell Stoss-Indiana Institute of Technology; Alice Reese-Wilkes-Barre Business College; Allan Herwig-Wilkes College.

Rod & Gun Club

Thomas Cully entertained the Rod & Gun Club with color slides of his hunting experiences in Newfoundland. He gave an interesting speech on the country and the animals found in it.

Business

On Wednesday, January 12, Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Vase, of Penn State Extension School, spoke to interested students in relation to their respective fields. They will be here again next month to continue their informative program.

Key Club

Key Club initiations have changed this year. Instead of forcing the prospective members to carry books or count all of the blocks on the cafeteria wall, the boys are merely wearing suits for a one week period. Initiations of past years caused various problems and disturbances throughout the school, making it necessary to have the system altered. It may not be as much fun but it still serves the purpose. We wish the new Key Clubbers the best of luck in the years or years of school and community service.

"Rejoice and make merry, for tomorrow we shall die," said someone or other. However, it is not quite true. It won't be tomorrow, it will be sometime next week when mid-year examinations descend upon us like a Great Black Bird. (Which reminds me: What do you call a canary that shoots dice? Give up? Why, the Bird of Pair of Dice, of course.) Anyway, back to mid-years, I have already resolved myself to a week of study (or is that week of study).

Seriously though, folks, we have a great column full of juicy tidbits for you this week. Unfortunately this isn't it.

The Drama Club and their "beloved" president (Guess who?) traveled to Bloomsburg last week to see the Bloomsburg Players in their production of Williams Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night". The Dallas alumnus, former reporter for this column, and now author of "Coke Bound" seen elsewhere in this paper, Bruce Hopkins, portrayed the hilarious role of Sir Andrew Aguecheek to its proper fullness in his own inimitable style so familiar to Dallas residents. (By the way, have you ever seen Bruce in "Link tights"?). Advisor for the Drama Club is none other than Bruce's brother, Mr. Donald Hopkins.

Seriously though, folks, Bruce did a fine job and can be congratulated for a great performance.

A letter was received last week by Mary Ann Foley, Senior and Junior English teacher, from the Showcase Theatre inviting all interested students to a preview performance of Euripides' "The Trojan Women" at the Showcase Theatre. However, all you interested students, the date is January 27, right smack in the middle of mid-year.

Food Service

Sincere congratulations are given to the Food Service Class who won fifth place out of thirty schools at the Farm Show School Vocational Demonstration in Harrisburg on Wednesday, January 12th. Their demonstration of sanitation in Food Service was entitled "Here's How".
