

Two Buildings, B. R. White Firm, Sold To Houck

Brings The Total Of Main St. Buildings Sold Recently To 3

Boyd R. White Furniture and Appliances, Main Street, Dallas, has been sold to an Ashley hardware dealer, and the large building, owned by Mrs. Harold Titman, has been sold to the new owner, as well.

At the same time, it is reliably reported, the property negotiations for the White Furniture building also included contract for purchase of the old postoffice building occupied by Ron's Barber Shop, and owned by Mrs. Titman as well. Purchaser is Wilbur S. Houck, Ashley, who bought the R. B. White Hardware Store there in 1965.

Purchase of the furniture business, according to Mr. White, was made April 1. Negotiations for the building were being concluded this week.

Raymond Titus, formerly associated with Boyd White for 13 years before taking a job with Royer Company, Kingston, has returned and will be manager for the Houck interests in Dallas. In addition to the inventory on Main Street, the White firm has stock stored in the old Himmler Theater, Lake Street. Also continuing in the employ of the Houck firm will be Janice Hanna, bookkeeper.

Mr. White says he does not intend to retire, but will be vacationing in Europe for about six weeks before entering any further endeavor. He first entered business in Dallas in 1949 next to the present bank building, moving to the Titman Building, formerly C. A. Frantz Building, when the bank expanded in 1952.

He says that while the consideration for the business was substantial, he regrets dropping his enterprise on Main Street, as he has enjoyed his association with customers.

Bill Phillips Buys Tap-room Building

William "Bill" Phillips, operator of the bar and grille under his name, Main Street, has purchased the building housing his enterprise and that of Joseph Maniskas' Beauty Parlor from Mrs. Harold LaBar, of Dallas.

Mr. Phillips says the consideration was $25,000.

Home Butter-Making Is Practically Extinct In The Back Mountain Area

Folks who nostalgically deplore the passing of the family churn as well as the horse and buggy, will be relieved to know that there are at least two bona-fide churners in the area.

Mrs. Frances Harvey, out in Bethel Hill, churns twice a week, and Miss Goldsmith, in Demunds, uses her Guernsey cow as source material. The product in both instances, is used in the home, not sold.

To Mrs. Harvey, however, goes the palm, because she still uses a washer churn, and Miss Goldsmith uses an electric model. This produces the butter, but it lacks atmosphere.

A lot of people hereabouts reverted to churning during World

Cigarette Burns Up Demunds Road Shack

A shed on Upper Demunds Road, to be dismantled for lumber by two young men Tuesday at 12:45 a.m., caught fire from a cigarette and burned to the ground.

A high wind picked up the cigarette flame which caught in some straw on the floor of the shed, on the Charlotte Weaver property, near Miller's corners, while Ellis Weaver and Marvin Meade were working inside.

Shed was totally engulfed in flames immediately, but the Dr. Henry M. Laing Fire Company was summoned, and it put out the blaze.

Weaver, recently home on furlough from the Air Force, said there was nothing in the shed except some straw, and it was worth only the lumber they had hoped to salvage out of it.

Several other sheds were close by, and were prevented from catching fire, and the Weaver home, also near-by, was protected, as well.

Thieves Ransack Methodist Church

Coffee Urns Stolen, Kitchen Vandalized

Burglars pillaged the Huntsville Methodist Church sometime late Monday night or early Tuesday morning, the Dallas Post has learned.

The intruders gained entry by breaking the kitchen door window, then proceeded to ransack the church, strewing around what they did not steal.

Among the items taken were three coffee urns and an electric clock.

An antique clock was smashed, and towels and dishes were thrown around, as well as other things. Damage was not confined to the kitchen.

Deed was discovered by women of the church who had come to quilt around 10:30 Tuesday morning. There had been another meeting the night before, and the entry had not been made by the end of that meeting.

Jackson Township and state police are investigating.

Blaze Consumes Noxen Home Of Mother, Family

Firefighters Battle Inferno Into Night

Fire destroyed a two-story home in Noxen Tuesday night, leaving a mother and seven children homeless.

The blaze which consumed the old frame dwelling on the hill above the former tannery broke out around 10:45 p.m. from unknown causes, according to fire officials.

Noxen Fire Chief Warren Hathaway said Mrs. Mildred Klamovich and family were at home at the time of fire, but escaped.

Shortly before the fire was detected, one of Mrs. Klamovich's children, Richard, 11, went to a neighbor's home for a fuse after one "blew out" at the Klamovich home. Returning home, Richard noticed a "brightness" in an upstairs bedroom and notified his mother.

Noxen company received the call first, went to the scene, but found its pump malfunctioning. Daniel C. Roberts Fire Company of Harveys Lake was called, and responded with a pumper and 16 to 20 men. Even when the Noxen company arrived, however, the old dwelling was a mass of flames.

Harveys Lake company, under direction of Fire Chief Richard Williams, pumped water from a filter bed behind the tanner with an auxiliary pump into the truck and then poured the water on the flaming structure with two one-and-a-half inch lines.

Harveys Lake Light Company truck and crew also responded to tend their own lines.

Amount of loss was undetermined, according to Hathaway, but could well come to $6000.

Alarm was turned in by neighbor Lucy Jones at about 10:45 p. m. The Klamovich family stayed the night at the Jones home.

Fire crews left the scene at about 3 a.m., although a five-man crew from Noxen remained on guard all night. Noxen Fire Company Auxiliary brought sandwiches and coffee to the firefighters.

HE IS RISEN

The wide and spacious sky in the background is a reminder that God's loving mercy recognizes no boundaries, that it is eternal, deeply seated in every human soul, awaiting the spark of life to fan it into flame. Each year, children are an integral part of Mr. Kozemchak's conception of the joyous Eastertide. The two children thus privileged this spring, are Amy Rowett and Cindy Brandt. The lilies, the symbol of purity, were contributed by Hill the Florist.

Two Flags Over Dallas To Display Respect For Free World Neighbors

Vietnamese Pennant In Visitor's Honor

Two flags fly over Dallas at the end of Claude Street, one the American and the other a fellow United Nations member.

Right now, the Canadian flag flies from the second pole on the property of Clare C. Winters, and it is homemade by Mr. Winters from a kit of materials he has assembled at his home.

Until Monday, the South Vietnamese flag was displayed, in honor of Young Quang Nghia, of that nation, who was studying telephone techniques at Commonwealth Telephone Company. Mr. Nghia left on Monday morning for Pittsburgh for further study in telephone technology which he will take home to apply to use on the telephone system there. (The South Vietnamese will also study with the Bell system in New York, and will attend a two weeks lecture with nine other of his countrymen at Michigan State University.)

Mr. Winters says he will display, from time to time, all UN members' flags, excepting those of communist nations, which can be made without a special seal or field. There are a total of 117 nations represented in the United Nations, from which the above criteria will be subtracted.

Exception, Mr. Winters is making the flag of Poland, which he says has been trying to get out from under the thumb of communism for years. It is also a relatively simple flag to make. In time, Mr. Winters expects

Bevy Of Chevies

Here's one for the records: The Dallas Post ran a classified ad last week, offering for sale a 1954 Chevie and an Encyclopedia. Numbers on the phone number were inverted.

The man who answered the phone said, sure, he had a 1954 Chevie for sale, but never heard of an encyclopedia, make an offer for the Chevie. About that time, another phone call straightened out the original number, and everybody lived happily ever after. A lot of folks were after the encyclopedia.

Work Begins On Lake Postoffice, New Contractor Filling The Void

First Builder Left Wall Half Complete

Abandoned for a year like the remains of some ancient temple, the new Harveys Lake Postoffice has begun to rise once more.

A new contractor has gamely taken up where the last one left off, according to word from reliable sources at the Lake.

Postoffice Department has re-assigned the contract to Edward Bebenek, Elysburg, who, according to Congressman Daniel J. Flood, has built several new postoffices in Pennsylvania and has arranged financing for the Harveys Lake project.

A letter has been received by the congressman from the Postoffice Department stating that "for a number of reasons . . . corporation (Forbes-Morrison, the original contractor) has not completed the building even though they did begin construction."

Thus the building project contract has been reassigned to the Bebenek company.

Forbes-Morrison's problems are reportedly in part a matter of a labor misunderstanding, according to neighbors who were around the day the original contractor's men walked off the job.

One skeptical Lake resident observed to this paper that he would not want to be in the new builder's shoes and have to guarantee the building after it had been allowed

Library Prepares For The Auction

Well over 1,000 books are already on hand for the Book Booth at the Twentieth Annual Back Mountain Memorial Library Auction July 7, 8 and 9.

Sorted out in advance, discards and duplications from the library shelves are kept in the small summer-house on the library grounds. When Auction time nears, the volumes near the ceiling.

To this backlog of books are added the donations of people who are clearing out their libraries.

The Librarian and the members of the Book Club collaborate on running the book booth, the mecca for everybody who wants to get away from the commotion of the auction block for a few moments of quiet browsing.

Mrs. Richard Dale reports that Mrs. George Montgomery, president of the Book Club, will see to it that members are alerted for this booth.

Mrs. Dale asks that contributors of books bring them, boxed, to the library, well in advance of the auction. Left at the Barn, they become scattered, and deteriorate.

It is far easier, says Mrs. Dale, to sort them out in odd times at the library.

Last year the Book Booth netted over $800, the highest amount ever realized during the nineteen years of the Auction.

to sit out and open in the past winter.

Building is to be owned by the contractor and leased for periods of time by the government. Plot of ground was owned by Roy Tyson, postmaster of Harveys Lake.
