

And Step Out ...

LET'S DINE OUT ON EASTER...

An active woman's activities increase rapidly as Easter approaches. If she likes to sew, she may have been busy creating her own new outfit. If she has children, especially little girls, she has been sewing for them.

If she is in the PTA, the Woman's Club, or her Church woman's organization, there have been committee meetings, refreshment preparation, program participation, fashion shows, and other responsibilities.

If she sings in the choir, there has been special music to learn for Palm Sunday, Holy Week, Easter and Lenten services.

Easter eggs to decorate, special baking to do, the children home from school on Thursday and Friday, plus her normal housekeeping activities, and then comes Easter Sunday dinner.

Perhaps she gets up at 5 a.m. to attend an inspiring Sunrise Service. After a short rest, she dresses herself and her family with extra care for Sunday School and Church, trying to get there a bit early because of the expected crowd.

Now, does she come home from church, cover her new dress with an apron, and start to spend the rest of the afternoon in the kitchen, first cooking, then cleaning up after Easter dinner?

... OR ANY DAY

While it's nice to take the family out to dinner on a special occasion like Easter, an ordinary day can become a holiday by topping it off with a restaurant meal.

An Oregon psychiatrist has labeled the cause of excessive fatigue in healthy young women the "lazy husband syndrome."

After spending the day doing the washing, ironing, mending, cleaning and cooking; feeding and disciplining the children and the dog, she still has to prepare dinner, wash the dishes, and put the children to bed. He husband may come home from work in an air-conditioned office, sit down to read the paper, watch TV, or nap till the meal is ready, then go out bowling in the evening.

When the routine continues week after week, the psychiatrist notes, the woman may become tense and fatigued beyond the actual physical tiredness involved.

A change of routine such as an occasional evening out together, including a good restaurant meal, can do wonders for her morale, and the happiness of the whole family.

In Greece, people tap red eggs together as a greeting when they meet on Easter. The first person says, "Christ is risen," and the second replies, "He is truly risen."

In Italy, a priest blesses the eggs on Easter, which then occupy the center of the breakfast table, with other dishes arranged around them.

EASTER PARADE PREDICTIONS

by Mary Alice Lukasavage

What will milady wear in this Sunday's Easter Parade? If she is a woman of fashion, the ensemble will be all important in her spring wardrobe. Dresses are frequently paired with matching coats. Sometimes, just the lapels of the coat match the dress, and the coat itself is made of a contrasting fabric.

those Easter Bonnets of '66 fashioned with brims are sure to have large ones. As a matter of fact, brim or not, there may be more hat than most of us are used to wearing. The perennial straw is used, of course, and flowers are in vogue. For the more daring, there are brightly printed silk hats.

Both coats and dresses for spring are gently shaped and flair out to A-line skirts. Although the waistline may wander up or down, dresses often emphasize the empire line. "Bell-bottom" sleeves are the newest idea of the season.

Three piece suits for spring seem to be the rule. The blouse may be of the same fabric as the skirt and jacket or it may be fashioned of a silky print. In the latter case, ruffles may peek through at the neckline and/or wrist. Double-breasted is the word in jackets and skirts appear "swingly" rather than slim.

Now that we have milady dressed, what will her accessories include? Small brim hats are out;

Shoes are definitely changed this year. The pointed toe and very high heel seem to be on the way out. Sling backs and cut out vamps are big for spring. We've borrowed straps across the instep and bows from the roaring twenties for our shoes this season. A small handbag to match her shoes and the appropriate gloves will complete milady's Easter finery.

IN THE CLOVER

Maurice Thompson

"Butterfly,
Flutter by,
Over the clover,
Under the sky.
Bumblebee,
Tumble free
Into the bloom of the tulip-tree ...
Meadowlark,
Glow like a spark ...
Tenderly whistle
On top of a thistle ..."

Planning A

Party

Convention

Seminar

Banquet

Wedding

Anniversary

HOTEL

STERLING

Traditionally Wilkes-Barre's
Finest Host

Reservations: Call
Miss Sterling 822-3131

The Castle

Harveys Lake Highway

FOR EASTER DINNER

Pleasant Dining in a
Gracious Atmosphere

SERVING EVERY DAY --- from 5 P.M.

HOLIDAYS and SUNDAYS
from 12 NOON

674 - 9461

The Breath of Spring

A hairdo that draws
all attention to you!
So lovely, yet
so carefree ... let us
create the new look
of spring for you.

SAM ROBERTS HAIR FASHIONS

Memorial Highway
Shavertown 675-1631

SPRING LOVELINESS

Begins
at

ROSEMARY'S
SPORTSWEAR

in the Back Mt.
Shopping Center
Shavertown

HAND BAGS

SCARFS

COSTUME
JEWELRY

HOSIERY
SOX

SKIRTS
BLOUSES
SLACKS

ACCESSORIES
SWEATERS
SUITS
DRESSES
LINGERIE

