Susan Banks Continues Story Of Life Among The Japanese

Japanese students in high school, in my opinion, are somewhat different than American students because the majority of their time is spent on study. In America, I think, there is an equal stress on extracurricular activities as well. That idea would bring me to the conclusion, based on observation, that the Average American student is more socially mature than the Japanese student.

All the pupils wear uniforms, though some are quite similar and the badges are different. The uniforms are considered proper attire for any occasion. The girls wear a pleated skirt, a wesket or jacket and the boys wear straight black or grey trousers, white shirt, a high collared black or grey coat and school cap. The color of the girls uniforms vary with the schools.

In America, the home is usually the center of discipline and guidance but in Japan, the school takes over and the parents agree with the "Divine Right" of the school. The Japanese government regulates smoking, drinking, gambling and age limits, twenty years is the age allowed for smoking and drinking and the playing of Pachinko and driving is set at 18 years. In Japan as in the United States, there are some characters who can't abide by the rules. Going steady, going to the movies with boys and to the tearooms without parents is also set by the school.

In Matsuyama there are two universities, Ehime University and Matsuyama Commerce University. There is great competition among the third year high school students in Japan to gain application to only the best universities, which are Tokyo, Kobe and Osaka. This is the most important goal of the average student. Of course the majority do not get in but every student is bent on studying for the dreaded university exam.

Love,
Sue (Sayonara)

Susan goes on to explain that most of the Japanese population have no religion. There are many Christians and Buddhists but most have none. She tells that they are of a superstitious nature and try to clear their debts and finish undone tasks before the 31st of December. New Years Day everyone dons their robes and visits a shrine regardless of their religion.

She concludes this series of letters by describing her visit to Himejo Castle and a trip to Kobe. The Japanese Rotary Club presented Susan with a lovely silk scarf and she was the recipient of other Xmas gifts from her sponsoring Rotarians, the Matsuyama East Rotary Club. School will be over until January 10 and a Christmas party is planned at the school of a friend and one of the English teachers has invited her for Christmas Dinner.

We hope to be hearing from Susan again as she grows more and more engrossed in her adopted country and her gracious friends.

Homemaker's Holiday Offer Spring Classes

The Back Mountain Homemaker's Holiday program of the YWCA holds classes every Tuesday morning at the Shavertown Methodist Church. This spring series will offer a variety of interesting and useful classes. For the sports minded woman there will be golf classes with Mr. John Lukas of the White Birch Course. If you desire a trim figure for spring join the slimnastics class with Mrs. Leo Novy.

You may create a fabulous new spring bonnet in the millinery class. Mrs. George Parry instructs this class and has all the latest spring millinery materials available but do bring your own pins. For the art class with Mrs. Peter Kozochok, you will need a sketch pad and charcoal. If you want to dress up your home for spring try the hooked rug class with Mrs. Peter Dean. Mrs. Leonard Adamshick instructs a hobby class and bridge is available with Mrs. Richard Lindsley.

Coffee is served at 9:30 a.m. and there is a supervised nursery for pre-schoolers. Come and enjoy the fun and fellowship of these classes.
