MEMORIES OF MY MOTHER

by Mrs. Charles Long, Sweet Valley

Mother, it is spring now, and my thoughts turn to you As I walk through my yard, just as you used to do Searching for signs of renewed life in your many bulbs and plants That you'd lovingly placed in the soil many months—perhaps years in advance

"Most always you would walk in the early part of the day. And as you saw the new growth, you would tenderly brush away The leaves—so that the sun might Reach and warm the shoots before the coolness of night I also recall with humor that your jaunts quite often would end Beyond the border of flower beds, to chat with a neighboring friend There you would be when I missed you, not meaning to cause alarm. But I'd search both the garden and yard—sometimes as far as the barn. After awhile I'd call "Mother"—soon you'd answer with a mischievous "yes."

Just one word spoken alone But I knew with much satisfaction That you meant "Yes, I'm coming home." It will soon be a year since you left us After years of suffering with pain. Life seemed hard for you many times, Mother, But in death you had Heaven to gain. Many tears I have shed in secret, nursing your dear sweet face Wishing you were here with us now, filling your own special place. Then with comfort I recall your last moments We would not leave you alone, We were all near by, when you answered His Call Saying "Yes, I'm Coming Home."

MOTHER

To watch over you when a baby,
To sing to sleep with her song,
To try to be near you,
To comfort and cheer you,
To teach you the right from the wrong,
To do all she can
To make you a man
And over a million things more —
To sigh for you,
Cry for you,
Yes even to die for you
That's why God made mothers.

MOTHERS

Willard Sutton Jr. Dies In Crash

Willard F. Sutton Jr., 24, Outlet Road, was the victim of a tragic accident early Saturday morning, when the car in which he was driving alone left the highway opposite Crown Imperial Bowling Lanes, and crashed into a utility pole.

The young man apparently fell asleep at the wheel, within a five minutes drive of his own home. Pronounced dead on arrival at Nesbitt Hospital, he had been so tightly wedged in the wreckage that it took Dallas Ambulance attendants and police fifteen minutes to extricate him.

Mr. Sutton was a lifelong resident of the area, a graduate of Lehman High School before the present jointure was formed. His father, Willard Sutton Sr. is chairman of Lake-Lehman School Board. His mother is the former Grace Worthington. There is a brother David, at home, and a paternal grandmother, Mrs. Harvey Sutton, of Lehman.

The young man was employed as a supervisor at the American Tobacco Company at Mountaintop. He was furthering his education by attending evening classes at Wilkes College. He was a member of Lehman Methodist Church.

For three years after graduation, he served in the United States Army.

Burial was Tuesday afternoon in Lehman Cemetery. Rev. Winfield Kelley, pastor of Lehman Methodist Church, conducted services from the Disque Funeral Home.

Jots From Dot

Dearest Family,
This weekend I went to Mataldi with Ede and Margaret Davis, a Methodist lady pediatrician here with CPRA. Went shopping, rested, mended clothes. Sunday after church I took them for a ride to see all the beautiful views around and above the city.

Be Careful Of The Mirror!

It isn't often something happens in disciplining students that turns out funny, but we have been in hysterics this week, though of course keeping a straight face before the student -- with great difficulty. He is one who is always in trouble over something, the last thing being that during a football game he threatened a member of the opposing team by saying if he ever came as a patient he would give him a bad injection. I had just announced a very severe punishment to the student for that and he was moaning about "Why does nobody like me, why do you always find fault with me?" I said that among his many bad habits he had one of curling his upper lip in a very unpleasant expression which impressed people very unfavorably, that he really had quite a pretty face if he'd only smile more, and suggested he go look in a mirror to see if I wasn't right.

Next thing I knew he comes carrying a broken mirror and a note from the dispensary nurse saying he had broken the mirror from the eye examining room and he couldn't understand what the student was doing with it. Well, I could! For once in his life the kid had nothing to say except that he had taken the mirror down to look in it and the hook broke. After I explained to the dispensary nurse and we got over laughing we put on a solemn face and said of course he would have to replace it, which he did the same day, for 750 francs, a lot of money for him, and he went off with the broken one which was still a mighty nice mirror anyway. I don't know which is the funnier part of the story -- that the student broke a mirror by looking in it or that the Directress caused this by trying to use psychology!
