Hurricane Interrupts Stay On Florida Keys

Leighton Scott, former managing editor of the Dallas Post dropped in over the weekend for a brief visit before beginning classes at Penna. State University on Monday.

Spoting a beautiful tan from his relaxation on the beaches from Virginia to Florida, the former staff member, nevertheless, had his vacation interrupted by the onset of Hurricane Alma, which struck shortly after Leighton had settled down on the Keys, former habitat of pirate bands.

With the vicious disturbance only a short distance behind, the vacationer left for northern Florida but was forced to continue homeward until he reached the Smoky Mountains, where he waited for the storm to blow out to sea. With a few days of free time left, he enjoyed the sands of Virginia Beach before driving to Dallas and Easton thence to Penn State.
