

Dallas All Gas Colonial Home

This two-story Colonial residence is one of a number of all-gas homes nearing completion in a newly developed area of College Manor opposite College Misericordia. Alvin S. Rothstein is the new developer of the residential area which promises to be one of the largest in the region and at the same time is bringing the Back Mountain area back into focus as an ideal home-building section.

home building representatives are working with Mr. Rothstein in planning the new homes, each one a different style, along the Old Lake Highway.

This Colonial features a sunken livingroom, has four bedrooms, 2½ baths; all-gas kitchen, dishwasher, garbage disposal. A separate dining room and fireplace are among the other features which unfold from a gracious entrance foyer. Gas hot water zoned-heat and a family room complete the lower level highlights of the home located on a circular drive, thus taking advantage of the corner location and wooded terrain on both sides. There is also a sun deck and 2-car garage.

Rothstein has become the prime developer of another new residential area, Elmcrest Woods, north of Elmcrest and connected with both the Old Lake Road and main highway.

Dr. Henry L. Lee, 3rd, Visits In Area Is Descendant Of Early Settlers Here

Dr. Henry L. Lee, 3rd, of San Marino, Cal., was the guest of Daniel Waters last week. The local historian who is writing a history of Dallas was most happy to meet with Dr. Lee, who is the grandson of Henry L. Lee, more familiarly known as Harry, who moved to Dallas in 1904 and built the large residence on Machell Avenue, now owned by Col. Fletcher Booker. Henry was the great grand-son of Captain Andrew Lee, the Revolutionary hero from Paxtang, Pa., who settled in Nanticoke in 1904 and constructed the Lee mansion which is still standing in the Honeyport section. Andrew Lee's sons, Col. Washington Lee and James Stewart Lee were instrumental in opening the first anthracite coal mines in Nanticoke and Newport, the mines being owned and operated by various descendants until just prior to World War II.

Dr. Lee, on his mother's side, is also a descendant of the Robbins and Honeywell families who were among the first settlers of Dallas (1812-1818).

Dr. Lee grew up in Dallas, attended Dallas Borough School and graduated from Wyoming Seminary. He is also a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is vice president of a chemical company in Southern California.

His father, Major Larry Lee, who was formerly in business in Dallas, resides near him in California as does his brother Dana. Near neighbors are former Dallas residents, Mr. and Mrs. Sandel Hunt, Mrs. Isabel Hunt Creager and Elmer (Sandy) Hunt.

Dallas Rotary Women Pledge Aid To YMCA

At a meeting Dallas Women of Rotary reaffirmed a motion made a month previously concerning the plight of the Back Mountain YMCA.

It was generally agreed that our community needs the facilities and opportunities afforded by the YMCA in this area. They believe that the children of this region would suffer should the institution close its doors.

The Rotary Women wish attention called to the floundering of the "Y" effort here due to lack of interest and information. If support is entirely withdrawn the decision to close the facility or not will be taken from the hands of the local board.

Dallas Women of Rotary wish to join the growing group of organizations and individuals who have pledged continued support of the Back Mountain YMCA.
