Mormon Pageant Annual Event At Hill Cumorah Near Palmyra, N.Y.

Four young area elders of the Mormon Church will take part in the annual Hill Cumorah Pageant near Palmyra, N.Y., July 26 to 30. They are Robert W. Chase, Vaughn Densley, Nolan G. Wilson, and Stephen L. Felt. Elders are supplanted by other elders at such a rate of speed in this area that it is practically impossible to keep up with them.
For a time, two of the elders lived on Lehman Avenue opposite the Dallas Post, and conducted Sunday services in the large living room. Recently, they moved their living quarters to Kingston, joining forces with the elders based in Wilkes-Barre.
But the Mormon services, more properly known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is still in Dallas. It is being accommodated in the Dallas Borough elementary school, where Sunday school is at 10 a.m. and worship service at 11.
Those taking part in the pageant at Palmyra, go through a rigorous period of rehearsal, usually far into the night, for the week before the actual presentation.
The cast is 430 strong, all of them handicapped. The pageant is staged 23 different levels of Hill Cumorah, each spotlighted as the scenes unfold in turn. The history of the Mormons is portrayed from 600 B.C.
Near Hill Cumorah is the Joseph Smith farm, from which the Mormons set forth for a free land in the West, driven by persecution, a minority group which had no recourse but flight.
In the Utah territory, they found what they were seeking, a safe harbor where they could bring up their children according to their own strict ideas.
Many other religious might well take thought. No Mormon ever goes hungry. The aged are cared for. There is an inbred responsibility toward the family and the community.
The Mormon Temple houses the most famous choir in the world. In the dusk before darkness falls at the Hill Cumorah Pageant, singing by the Mormon Choir is broadcast, as spectators find their seats at sundown.
The pageant does not start until it is completely dark at 9:15, to insure the full effect of each lighted stage in turn.
The parking lot has been expanded to 400 acres. Cars which are to go out into the highway after the performance in one direction, are all faced properly in the lot. At the conclusion of the performance, there is no confusion, no battling traffic. The flow is continuous. Half an hour after the actors leave the stage, the parking lot is deserted.
It is a tradition that no rain falls on the nights of the pageant.
An occasional shower lays the dust before the evening performance, but no drop falls thereafter.
Palmyra is on route 21, intersected by route 31. From the New York Thruway to Buffalo, it is four miles north from exit 43.
Visitors are advised to reach the grounds in ample time. Many thousands attend the pageant, some returning year after year.

Father Of Area Man Entering Ministry

More and more middle-aged or elderly men, retired from business, are expending their accumulated wealth of wisdom for their fellowmen by studying for the ministry. One such man is John H. Richardson, father of William Richardson of Oak Hill.
Mr. Richardson retired from Sears Roebuck six years ago, expecting to live out his life comfortably. He built a home for the declining years.
When his wife died, he took stock, and decided to study for a degree in theology. At Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington he enrolled in the special summer session.
This entails working for three years before being ordained, but it permits a man to take the pulpit of a church sadly needing a minister, while still working toward ordination three years hence.
Mr. Richardson has supplied pulpits acceptably in White Haven and Hazleton. He has a built-in genius for getting to know people, and an understanding of everyday problems of life that should stand him in good stead as a Methodist minister.
He takes the pulpit of the Forkston Methodist Charge this coming Sunday.
