President Johnson Writes Joleen Shaw

Joleen Shaw, aged thirteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Shaw, Sweet Valley, has received a letter from President Lyndon Johnson.

Joleen had written our nation's Chief Executive concerning some predictions she had heard and a dream which carried out the prediction.

In Sunday school her mother had read prophecies which had come true and a prediction of our involvement in war by December. The child dreamed that evening that we were at war. Greatly troubled, she penned a five page letter to the President asking if he were a Christian and urging him to pray for peace and for guidance in all his decisions.

Within two weeks, Johnson had answered the Sweet Valley girl, a freshman at Lake Lehman High School. He assured her that he was a Christian and that he sought guidance from the Almighty before setting forth any decisions of great moment to the country and his people.

History Of Library Published

A delightful and informative booklet "Rural Fare" has recently been issued giving concisely yet entertainingly the history of the Bradford-Sullivan-Wyoming County Libraries for the first 25 years.

The author, Miss Daves Markwell, has been the librarian of this institution for the full time of its existence and consequently knows the story of its inception and development as no one else can. Starting with the physical features of the area, she portrays vividly the need of the communities for the education which only reading can give and tells the story of how it all began, how it has grown and prospered.

The story of the early days of the bookmobile is a fascinating one. The isolated one-room schoolhouses, without conveniences or even what today would be necessities, the hazardous roads, the lack of man-power during the war, the personal incidents which added variety to an already varied day—these make entertaining reading but show also what it meant to establish such a library in a rural community. Later days of the library's growth are no less interesting.

In easy, conversational style, the story is told of the crisis which came within an ace of killing the project altogether, of its interesting growth in the "wilds" of Sullivan County and then in Wyoming County. Since a library is concerned not only with books but with people, people are found on nearly every page of this booklet and they are very real. Nor are the present situation and the possibilities of the future neglected. All in all, this is a vivid picture of a remarkable and valuable community service.

Copies of the booklet (25c each) may be obtained from any library or from deposit stations of the County Library or from the headquarters at RD 3, Troy.

AC&C Contributes $1,000 To Library

The American Chain & Cable Company, Wilkes-Barre, has made a contribution of $1,000 on behalf of the Wm. T. Morris Foundation to the Back Mountain Library for the purchase of books.

This is an increase of $500 over contributions in previous years and will enable the library to augment, to a considerable extent, the books now on hand.

The contribution was one of several to local institutions in the Valley and was announced by Joseph H. Ritts, Plant Manager of the Company's Wilkes-Barre operation. Presentation was made to Robert Bachman, a director of the Library Board, at the office of the American Chain & Cable Company on Friday, August 5 at which time contributions totaling over $72,000 were made to local hospitals, col-

BEWARE: POISON IVY

If the leaves grow in clusters of three, beware. You may be in a poison ivy area.

The Pennsylvania Department of Health says the three-leaf trademark is the best identification of the plant which brings distress to thousands, especially in spring and summer when it is full of sap.

The first signs of poisoning are burning and itching. This is followed by a rash and swelling. Frequently there are blisters.

The health department recommends these steps following possible contact with poison ivy:

Wash the skin with soap, preferably the old-fashioned, alkaline, yellow laundry soap; sponge with rubbing alcohol, apply calamine lotion or baking soda solution.

Most cases of poison ivy are caused by direct handling of the plant. Others can be caused by handling clothing, garden tools and pets that have been contaminated by poison ivy sap.

Ever hear of the person who contracted poison ivy from smoke from a brush fire containing poison ivy branches and leaves? The State Health Department says this can happen, too.

Indianapolis-Type Sprints At Bedford Fair Saturday

The wheels of fortune and the United Racing Club (URC) Indianapolis-type sprint cars will spin again in the backdrop setting of a state fair, when the east's largest open-cockpit racing association presents its annual six-event program at the Bedford Fair on Saturday afternoon, August 13.

With former champions and current co-leaders Earl Halaquist of Sidney, N. Y., and Lou Johnson of Wilmington, Del., leading the invasion, Race Director Sam Nunis promises the same field of drivers which electrified Delaware State Fair crowds on successive weekends.

The star-studded array of NRC speedsters will begin practice and warmups at 1:45 p.m., with the first of three 8-lap qualifying heat races to follow at 2:30 o'clock. A 10-lap semi-feature consolation will supply the remainder of the starting field for the 25-lap Bedford Sweepstakes.

Plan to be on hand to meet and cheer for your favorites, as they seek that coveted trip to victory lane.

State Museum Readies Big Show Of Charles Demuth's Paintings

What undoubtedly will be one of the most comprehensive exhibitions of the paintings of famed Pennsylvania artist Charles Demuth (1883-1935) currently is being readied by the Fine Arts staff of the William Penn Memorial Museum, Harrisburg, for a six-week show opening Saturday, September 24.

In preparation for weeks now, under the direction of Vincent R. Artz, Curator of Fine Arts for the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the exhibition will include approximately 150 works by the Lancaster-born painter, assembled on loan from the nation's greatest public collections, leading art galleries and private owners.

"We are attempting here," said Curator Artz, "to present the broadest possible opportunity for full appreciation of the striking talent and technique with which Charles Demuth was so generously gifted. The paintings will cover every phase of the artist's productivity between 1907 and 1934."

Demuth, who was born in Lancaster, Pa., on November 3, 1883, died there October 23, 1935. The greater part of his most significant volume of work was done there, also in Provincetown on Cape Cod, Mass.; in Bermuda, in New York City, and also traveling in Europe.

Opening Saturday, September 24, the Charles Demuth Exhibition will occupy the Fine Arts Gallery at the William Penn Memorial Museum.

You should exercise extra caution while driving during a light shower, Aetna Life & Casualty safety specialists warn. Highways are slicker than during a heavy rain because road oil and grease "float" on the surface of the moisture. A down-pour washes them away.

Harrisburg, through Sunday, November 6.

There is no admission charge. The Museum is open daily, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. It is located immediately adjacent to the State Capitol Building, on North Third Street between North and Forster Streets.

Currently featured in the Fine Arts Gallery (through Sunday, September 18) are some 70 paintings, sculptures and woodcarvings from the celebrated Abby Aldrich Rockefeller American Folk Art Collection, on loan from Williamsburg, Virginia, plus several dozen professional award-winning paintings from the recent Second Annual Showcase Exhibition of the Association of Delaware Valley Art Centers.
