"A Continuing Bridge" Title Of Talk On New Hymnals At Huntsville

New Methodist hymnals are being received in all the churches of the area, and many ceremonies of dedication have been carried out as hymnals are put into use, or at a convenient time a few weeks later. Huntsville Methodist Church, a flock at present without a shepherd, but expecting a pastor in a week or so, staged an impressive ceremony on Sunday.

Huntsville was fortunate in having Miss Catherine Gilbert to explain the reasons for omission of some hymns, inclusion of others which had not appeared in the hymn book since 1935, when the last issue was published. Miss Gilbert had spent a week at Lycopium College in a sacred music study group which discussed the new publication thoroughly with its editor.

The new book is printed in large, clear type, easy to read without fumbling for glasses. Old-timers will be delighted to find that a long-time favorite, "Oh For a Thousand Tongues to Sing," is once more on the first page, and that "Stand Up for Jesus," a gospel hymn familiar to them from their earliest childhood, has been included.

Miss Gilbert started her talk by speaking to the small children on the front row, leading them adroitly from the correct pronunciation of Hallelujah and Amen to singing a phrase in soft, small voices. The choir had been alerted to cooperate, singing stanzas of various hymns upon request.

"A Continuing Bridge" was the title which Miss Gilbert chose for her talk and demonstration, a title which exemplifies the love and concern which has gone into the singing of hymns through the ages, a unified outpouring of worship from many lands and from many sources. At the conclusion of the talk, Levi K. Sutliff, 79, Fairmount Springs, died early Sunday morning in Berwick Hospital, where he had been a patient for five days.

Rain Spatters Mount Zion Bidders But Auction Crowd Is Largest Ever

Mount Zion Methodist Church auction was spattered with rain at times, but the crowd stuck it out until along toward midnight, when the folding chairs, once used in the dining room, and used during the auction to seat the bidders, went over the block for a minimal sum. Over 300 people were fed at the roast beef dinner, descending upon the food in sections after awaiting their turn in the church above. Seating capacity in the dining room falls far short of 300. Tickets were numbered upon presentation at the door.

Annually, many people come up from Wyoming Valley for the home-cooked meal. Demand on the kitchen was so great that kitchen and dining room personnel found themselves shy of roast beef when they sat down to eat.
 One great improvement in facilities (in addition to the new dining room chairs) reports Miss Catherine Gilbert, is installation of a new electric stove which for the first time rendered the kitchen cooler than the dining room.
 Fruits, vegetables, baked goods and flowers found ready sale in a room upstairs.

The Odds and Ends Booth was rained out after a brisk trade in this and that, and the remaining items were herded into cartons for auction over the block, like a grab-bag. Nobody knew exactly what was in a box, but Bob Earl and Gerald Pinay kept the boxes moving, along with decrepit walnut chairs, used chests of drawers, and even a churn. World War II model, much in demand when butter was scarce, in the days before milk was homogenized and cream was still permitted to rise to the top of the bottle.

Showers sent bidders scurrying to the refreshment booth, which reaped the harvest of unprecedented demand for hot dogs and french-fries. Here, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dymond were in charge.
 The rain was reminiscent of the first Library Auction, when bidders stood with umbrellas dripping down their necks, fascinated by the sale, unable to leave.
 Mt. Zion has a slick trick. The committee, headed this year by Brainerd Daniels, arranges for a large trailer truck to station itself immediately behind the auction stand. The truck, provided by Leon VanTuyke, holds the most fantastic quantity of goods, new and used, protected from the weather, brought out to replace goods vanishing from the block into the hands of eager purchasers.

Patrons parked up and down the road as well as on the church grounds, ducked for their cars when the rain got too heavy, emerged again as showers lessened. The rain was a surprise to everybody, for until about the time the first roast beef dinner was served, the sky had been blue and cloudless.
 From that time on, the weather was anybody's guess.
 It takes a lot of weather to discourage Mt. Zion. The crowd was the largest in history.
 No figures are yet available on the auction itself, but the roast beef dinner made out with a nice profit.

Young Folks Sing At Trucksville Shop
 Young folks who dropped in at the Snack Shop, Carverton Road, for a coke or sandwich last Thursday evening were lucky for they ran into Rose Harvey and her "magic" accordion. An hour of fun, group singing and good clean jollity were enjoyed during the supper hour. And then -- like the Pied Piper of old -- Rose led them to the Tent Crusade, corner of Carverton Road and Bunker Hill, for her evening service.
 Rose and Alan Harvey conducted services at the Tent Crusade, sponsored by the Park Neighborhood Church, every night at 7:45, through Sunday, August 28. Rev. Grove Armstrong is pastor.
