Pet Care Teaches Children Kindness

Children learn valuable lessons from having a pet if they take some responsibility for its care, according to Mrs. Marguerite L. Duval, extension child development and family life specialist of Pennsylvania State University.

Just feeding an animal regularly, keeping it clean, and training it isn't easy for young children. They'll need help and reminding, but give them the responsibility. How much you can give them will depend on their ages and past experiences in taking responsibility, she points out.

Children will learn what it's like to have another living being dependent on them for food and care. It may be the first time they experience the feeling of being needed. Children have to learn to be sympathetic and caring for a pet may give them this experience. Even a plant to water can provide this if a pet is not possible.

Children learn about illnesses and accidents from having a pet. Mrs. Duval explains. They find that a dog can get a cold, a bird's broken leg needs a splint, or a pill or a shot helps an animal to get well. The importance of taking medicine when prescribed may carry over into the children's own lives.

A pet becomes an object of affection for a child, and can give the shy child something to talk about. Having a pet may also help a child overcome fear of animals, Mrs. Duval adds.

Jots From Dot

A Brief Note About Conference (from letter of June 13) Dear Folks,

I haven't had time to write a whole account of Conference so will scribble a note to let you know I got back and we had a wonderful time. This year they had the ordination service Sunday morning instead of afternoon so I didn't have to miss it. The big thing was that the Church of Central Congo commissioned their own missionaries to go to the city of Lusambo. They sent two preachers, a teacher and a nurse. The most thrilling part was that the nurse they sent was Ukut Uhambe Louis who said in 1954 that he wanted to be a missionary after a trip to the Ambuli (pygmy country).

New Bible In Otetela

We had a thanksgiving service for the complete Bible. All the copies haven't arrived yet, just a few sent by air. Of course the New Testament was done over 40 years ago but the Old was started 8 1/2 years ago.

July 27 1966 (day after her birthday)

Dear Folks,

No doubt you heard that there is fighting between the National Army and some of the mercenaries and Katangans. Apparently there had been friction building up over a long period of time. As in any crisis there are rumors as to what is really behind it all. Whether there is any truth to them or not is less important than how much of them are believed and acted upon by the people. In this case the order went out that no Europeans (white people) were to leave Kinshasa. We heard about it when some people came back after being turned back at a road block on the edge of the city.

We decided to see for ourselves. So left about noon. Sure enough we were stopped and told to go back to get a pass. We went to the local commander's office and he gave us a note and they let us through but kept the note because it was addressed only to that one block. They assured us this was the only blockade. But when we got to Nikisi, to the bridge that they always have guarded the most strictly, they wouldn't let us pass. We went to the local gov't office and he gave us a pass, but they wouldn't honor that, and the only Army headquarters was at Thysville on the other side of the bridge. Dr. Tuttle had gone to IME for dental work and we heard he was on the other side of the bridge and couldn't get past. The soldiers were quite polite, not at all rough, they just had orders not to let any white people go from Kinshasa to Matadi or vice versa. We decided to go back to Sona Bata for the night so we could tell Mrs. Tuttle where her husband was. We thought he would go back to IME, but he spent the night in a hotel in Thysville.
