MOUNT ZION

I seem to be late with my spring evidences this year. It was not till April 1 that I saw a beautiful V of geese going over against a deep blue sky. And the mallards to which I wrote a farewell speech last fall had come in on an inspection flight low over Norman's pond while ice still covered all but the front edge of our pond. A few days of melting weather and they had come down on our pond from which they left last fall. I saw at least 4 the other day. And then a day comes when they do not show themselves. Plenty of cover on the other end of the pond to shelter a nesting project if they see fit. Well, we don't have to tell them what to do!

It seems warm enough now that the martin house can have the winter window coverings removed and hoisted up to its 14 feet in the air. Last Friday I left Valley Crest in time to get to Beaumont to conduct the funeral of Mrs. Urbane (Maude) Dymond whose late husband's funeral I conducted 9 months ago. The oldest of the sons, Nelson, I had married to Althea Volpleus back during war time, was there. Also their son Kenneth whom I had married in 1965. Also I saw Hiram and Elsi Harris there, formerly of Mt. Zion. And Dave and Celia Emanuel.

Before time for the funeral I stopped a few minutes at my friends the Stones. I found Mrs. Ada Stone quite ill, having had a major operation in March the day after her 82nd birthday. I couldn't resist singing her a hymn as I do for the folks at Valley Crest. She seems to appreciate it. We knew the Stones back at Dark Hollow when I was pastor at Meshoppen and Kaiser-ville.

At church Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Coridon Lloyd were admitted to membership. We are glad to give them a hand of fellowship for we have come to know them as grand people. They are parents of Thomas Lloyd who lives down the hill from them.

Catherine Gilbert and Marjorie Seiple sang a lovely post-Easter duet Sunday morning. Dorothy Gilbert took off over the hills to Clarks Summit where she gave her story of Conso to the Methodist people there. The pastor is Burt Sweet whom we all knew at the Dimock Camp Ground back in the days when we were pastor here. She met a family there at Clarks Summit who used to live across the street from the Federated Church at Maine. And a man whom we used to know at Meshoppen.

In the evening she was on the program at Centermoreland Methodist Church.

The spring sounds are a little too faint to suit me. The shrieking peepers are a delicate little fluting melody. Cathy told me they were shrieking so I listened. They peeped! I've been glad to hear part of the music of the song sparrow. Maybe later on I'll hear his full-throated song. The Cardinal has been saying "pretty-pretty-pretty" for quite a while. And I did get the full honk-honk of the wild geese. And the mallard's quack, especially that of the female which is more nasal (or bill-ish) comes clear.

Some sounds that gave me sheer joy was that of the trumpet trio at the Dallas Senior High Concert last Friday night. Our Larry Earl was one of the boys and we always like to hear him anyway. But the three together were accurately tuned to each other and the notes were smooth. And we enjoyed Janet Balshaw on the flute which is one of my favorite instruments. We have watched Janet grow up since we have been oratorio fans. For that matter Vera her sister too. To say nothing of that young man named Paul whom we used to watch sing in the chorus "long" ago, now a mature professional singer.

Speaking of the flute, I used to think I would like to play the flute myself. Dimly I remember my father playing one. When we were here at Carverton and I had a flute and attempted to practice with it in an orchestra at Dimock Camp Ground I found myself frustrated when our dog Ginger pounced right up on that platform and seized hold of my flute. I decided I would never be a flute player—or he decided it!

The Oratorio

Speaking of music this coming Sunday at Irem Temple is the big day of the oratorio. Dorothy and Catherine will both be in it this year. I will be preaching at Larksville and Plymouth in the morning and will hurry home to get an early start to this big event.

One Winter Job Done

My gasoline snow blower gave out early (as usual) and I decided I would find out for myself what went wrong. So I tore it down, found the broken piece, sent for a new replacement. Then from time to time, in no hurry because I had an electric which would work, I tinkered with the cantankerous gas blower. I'd get it together and it was locked and wouldn't go. Two or three times I took it apart to find out why. The last time I was ready to give it away to some mechanical genius if I couldn't get it together so it would go. This time it went together and works! Next to get it ready in time for next snowstorm.
