Airman Charles Raver is on duty at Vietnam. Airman First Class Charles R. Raver, son of Mrs. Betty Mahle, RD 2, Dallas, is on duty at Cam Ranh Bay AB, Vietnam.

Airman Raver, an aircraft equipment repairman, is assigned to a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Vietnam, he was assigned to the 479th Field Maintenance Squadron at George AFB, Texas.

Like that largest of living animals—the blue whale—the small, white-spotted (sei) whale is threatened with extinction as a result of over-fishing. To save the species, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization has called for an international agreement drastically curbing sea-whale hunting in its Antarctic habitat. Blue whales already are protected by a fishing ban.

Cystic Fibrosis March Set For September 10

More than 2,000 volunteers from the greater Scranton/Wilkes-Barre areas will campaign on Sunday, September 10, for the 1967 Cystic Fibrosis fund appeal. The Anthracite Branch of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, which was organized two years ago by parents of Cystic Fibrosis victims in northeastern Pennsylvania, will coordinate the local drive. Last year's fund drive, the second held in this area, raised $14,500.

The volunteers will call on their neighbors and friends for contributions to help in the conquest of Cystic Fibrosis, a disease of infancy and childhood. Cystic Fibrosis is an inherited disease which damages the lungs and affects digestion. It is found in approximately one in every 1,000 live births and is second only to cancer as the cause of death among children under the age of 15. It is estimated that the number of children in this country who have Cystic Fibrosis is more than 25,000. Because it is inherited from the parents it is not uncommon for more than one child in a family to be afflicted.

Funds realized during the campaign will be used by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation to find a cure for this dread disease.

A few years ago few C/F victims lived beyond the age of five. Today, many of them have reached their teens because of discoveries made through research.

Persons interested in participating in this campaign should contact the local Cystic Fibrosis Office, IBE Building, Wilkes-Barre, telephone 822-5721.

Drugs and techniques developed by the National Foundation are now being used to treat area C/F victims at the Cystic Fibrosis clinic established last year at Mercy Hospital, Wilkes-Barre. The Anthracite Branch participated in organizing the "Satellite" clinic. Dr. Joseph Robinson and Doctor Howard Harris, Wilkes-Barre pediatricians, are assisting Doctor Nancy Huang, director of the Cystic Fibrosis program at St. Christopher's Hospital, Philadelphia, in bi-monthly examinations and treatment of area children afflicted with the disease.

Classes at the 136 year old college - the country's oldest Lutheran College - will begin September 14.

Dr. C. Arnold Hanson, college president, will speak at the annual opening convocation to be held September 15 at 11 a.m. in the Student Union Building.

In addition to Mexico, Canada and District of Columbia, the new students represent the following states: Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Michigan, Florida, Delaware, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Tennessee, N. Carolina, Maine, Illinois and Connecticut.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT'S MALARIA ALERT LAUDED

Pennsylvania's Department of Health received a "well-done" from the U.S. Public Health Service after the recent malaria alert sounded by the Federal agency.

The message was from Dr. Hans Lobel, Chief of the Malaria Surveillance Unit of the National Communicable Diseases Center in Atlanta, to Dr. W. D. Schrack, Jr., director of the State's Division of Communicable Diseases.

Regular and continuing cooperation between the State and Federal health agencies is routine, but the alert sounded over the weekend of August 17-21 touched off an emergency mission that provided knowledge that may be required again.

Malaria is virtually unknown in the United States, thanks to public health measures long in effect against the anopheles mosquito, virtually the only carrier of the disease.

Malaria may, however, again become a public health concern in this country because of recent international developments. These developments are the return of U.S. military personnel from Vietnam, the return of Peace Corps and various other U.S. foreign aid personnel from malaria-infested regions, and the increasingly widespread travel of American tourists.

Six hundred and seventy-eight cases of malaria in returned personnel from Vietnam and other areas were reported in 1966 and another 1,355 have been observed already in the first seven months of 1967, according to Dr. Issac F. Gratch, state epidemiologist.

The alert two weeks ago was triggered when public health officials in New York discovered a nurse in a New York Hospital suffering from falciparum malaria, a severe variant of the disease.

Elizabeth Banks Trains At Lankenau Hospital

Elizabeth Susan Banks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Banks of Shavertown, is one of 79 girls who will begin classes at the Lankenau Hospital School of Nursing in Philadelphia on September 11.

The girls will undergo six months of pre-clinical training before practical experience on the patient floors. Lankenau, a fully accredited school, offers a three-year course in nursing.

Lankenau was one of the first hospitals in the Philadelphia area to establish a professionally trained nursing service. In 1884, when most hospital nursing was performed by untrained domestics, it recruited a nursing staff from the Institute of Protestant Deaconesses in Germany, a training school which lists Florence Nightingale among its alumnae.

Fifteen years later the deaconesses started a training school at the hospital with a few "pupil nurses." As it marks its 68th anniversary, the Lankenau School of Nursing has an enrollment of more than 200.

Investigation developed that the nurse had been a member of a tour group sponsored by Gettysburg College and had probably been infected by a mosquito or mosquitos in India or Pakistan.

It was quickly determined that of the forty-six members of the group, twenty-two were residents of Pennsylvania and the remainder from nine other states.

Dr. Lobel notified the Pennsylvania Department of Health so that the twenty-two Pennsylvania individuals and their personal physicians could be warned of their possible exposure, since the incubation period had not yet expired.

Dr. Schrack and Dr. Gratch, aided by Theodore H. Weinstein, epidemiologic intelligence service officer on loan to the state from the USPHS, fanned out the alert to the Department's regional medical directors.

These were Dr. Clayton B. Mather in Pittsburgh, Dr. Joseph J. Wunsch in Reading and Dr. William T. Lane in Philadelphia.

They, with the public health nurses, were able to find all of the potentially exposed travellers and their personal physicians by late Friday afternoon.

All potentially exposed persons are now believed out of danger, but the State Health Department is prepared for another alert—just in case.
