BRUCE HOPKINS

Bruce Hopkins, witty columnist of "Off The Cuff" will appear soon as the star in another drama at Bloomsburg State College where he is a member of the Junior Class. A very vital part of the Bloomsburg Players, Bruce will appear in "Visit To A Small Planet", as Kren-ton who comes to earth hoping to see the Civil War in progress.

Miscalculating however he lands his spaceship in Virginia in the year 1961. Making the best of his predicament he invites himself into the household of the Roger Speldings where he becomes involved with their daughter Ellen, much to the jealousy of her fiancé.

How it all ends you will have to see for yourself but you can be sure that Bruce will be at his best and a fine evening's entertainment is in store for you.

RAINBOW TO MEET

Charles James Memorial Assembly No. 144, International Order of Rainbow for Girls will hold its regular meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the Eastern Star Hall, Foster Street, Dallas.

The nearest telephone was ten miles away but there were facilities such as electricity and running water. Nine hundred people dwelt in the nearest town which was one and a half miles from the school.

Maggie said her pupils had been selected by common entrance exams and most had government scholarships. There was an excellent library two T-V sets and 11 pianos. Several tennis courts also offered diversion.

There was one class for each grade and Maggie said she felt they were not quite up to our standards.

Teachers lived the simple life, most of them being native Jamaicans. They rose at 6 a.m. and retired at 9. Occasionally the students went home but visits were mostly during class breaks and all holidays were observed.

They are the parents of two sons, Allen, Redondo Beach, Calif. and Timothy, a teacher at Wyoming Seminary.

Maggie Jacobs Tells Of Her Year's Work As Teacher On Jamaica Isle

Maggie Jacobs of Montreal, Canada, who is as much at home in Dallas as in her native city is back in circulation again after spending two years as a member of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

Miss Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jacobs, Montreal and sister of Mrs. Martin Samuels, Lehman Avenue, Dallas, was director of the YWCA Day Camp here for two summers, an interlude between classes at Carlton University when she made a number of friends in the Back Mountain area.

The young lady decided to enter her country's service following graduation and was assigned to Jamaica for a two year period. Here among an almost totally Negro population she taught Literature and French in the High School which was equivalent to our 12th grades and first year of college.

Situated atop a picturesque hill, 1500 feet above sea level, the buildings housed 200 students and 14 teachers. Fifteen structures made up the former sugar estate which had been founded by Rev. Webb in 1880.

The nearest telephone was ten miles away but there were facilities such as electricity and running water. Nine hundred people dwelt in the nearest town which was one and a half miles from the school.

Maggie said her pupils had been selected by common entrance exams and most had government scholarships. There was an excellent library two T-V sets and 11 pianos. Several tennis courts also offered diversion.

There was one class for each grade and Maggie said she felt they were not quite up to our standards.

Teachers lived the simple life, most of them being native Jamaicans. They rose at 6 a.m. and retired at 9. Occasionally the students went home but visits were mostly during class breaks and all holidays were observed.

Maggie considered the opportunity to be with the raw guts kids and said it was quite an experience. From early September until early July there were classes to teach and during the summers she helped run the church schools on the western end of the island nearest Cuba. Jamaica was described by its visitor as a most historic island but one must know one's way about to find the villages.

Crafts are the main source of revenue and straw merchandise, beads fabulous embroidery and hemp products are among the most interesting. Tourists furnish the second largest source of income and there is also bauxite on the island which however is chiefly agricultural Sugar plantations are plentiful as are yams and bananas.

Maggie described the northern beach as being saltier and the western end as the most lush to be in.

Poverty is very prevalent and the youngsters who must trudge in many instances ten miles to school must turn to chores at home after classes are completed.

The three largest centers of Jamaica are at Kingston, Montego Bay and Mandeville. An interesting sight is the Runaway Train to Brownstown which is used for transportation to the ships anchored at ocean side. Remnants of the Spanish who at one time headed the government are to be found in the architectural designs in the square. Previously British, the island is now independent.

Maggie says the hardest adjustment was to make the changeover to the colder temperatures after two years in the tropical clime and the high cost of living at home.

This fall she will enter Sir George University to obtain her Master's in Literature. Perhaps next summer she will visit the Dallas area again.
