Fresh Air Guest At Smith Home

Annette and Janette, the two little Fresh Air children who were part of the Donald D. Smith family in W. Dallas for two weeks, started back for New York on Thursday.

Mrs. Smith saw them off on the bus at 9 a.m., part of a twenty-child load bound for the city.

That same evening, she got a phone call from them. They wanted to come back for a swim in the pool, and a chance to play outdoors on the grass. They had a craving to see a cow again, and to pick the Queen Anne's Lace in the meadows. They said it was hot in the city.

It was a busy two weeks for the Smiths, from July 26 to August 8, trying to pack every possible bit of experience into a short two-week period from rides on the merry-go-round at the picnic grounds, to shopping excursions to buy pretty summer dresses; from a wedding and reception at the Country Club, to running carefree and barefoot over the lawn in West Dallas; and to the indescribable luxury of only two in a bed.

Annette and Janette are twins, eight years old. Their satiny brown skin is an evidence of perfect health. They put on a bit of weight while they were visiting here, part of it due to Clara Kitchen's chocolate chip cookies. Mrs. Kitchen believes in spoiling children a little, especially when they are twins, and carbon copies of each other, mirrored reflections.

A. and J. say there is another set of twins in the family, eleven years old, who enjoyed their summer trip to a place in Connecticut.

A & J clung to Donna, each claiming her for their own. She swam with them and played with them, and gave them lessons in manners, a big sister taking the smaller under her wing.

They came up from New York with new clothing, but Donna and Mrs. Smith enjoyed picking out pretty dresses for them, so that they will be all ready to start school in the fall with a sparkling new wardrobe.

Their eyes lighted up when they saw the swimming pool that first afternoon, and they tore into their suitcase to find their bathing suits. There was a tense moment when a frog decided to join in the fun. They had never seen a frog. It was slippery, it was green, and it jumped, clearly a wild animal with carnivorous instincts. It took a considerable amount of coaxing to persuade Janette to touch it with a timid forefinger.

The family cat, leashed and running back and forth, restrained by a wire from getting into the road, was the target for blue-jays, and this, the twins thought was hilarious. Perched at a safe height, the jays squalled and cursed at their Attendees were Mrs. Michael Carter, daughter of the bride, and Lt. Alan Landis, stationed at Quantico, Va., son-in-law of Mr. Sowden.

A family reception followed. The couple is residing at 78 Summit Street, Shavertown.

Mrs. Sowden has been employed in the office at Wyoming Seminary. Mr. Sowden is president of Back Mountain Lumber and Coal Co.

Goodbyes from the children and from the people who had entertained the youngsters for two crowded weeks.

"See you next summer." As for Annette and Janette, they didn't go back to their apartment house. While they were away in Dallas, their mother took the opportunity to move to a house at a distance from the former neighborhood, one where the children would have more room.

"We hope we'll have a whole room to ourselves and a big bed like this one," they said with a loving backward look.

"We wouldn't have missed it for the world," said Mrs. Smith, when recounting her experiences. We wouldn't have missed a minute of it. That's the advantage of taking two children instead of one. They keep each other company.

The whole project around this area started with an article by Mrs. Kale in the Dallas Post, in search of families who would take children for a two-week period. Mrs. Smith was one of the first to respond.

Mrs. Kale took a child, Mrs. Thomas of Meadowcrest opened her doors, and Mrs. George Pointon, Davenport Street, took a little girl.

If anyone else in the area took a child, now is the time to speak up.

When the bus started to pull out, small faces appeared at the windows, and there was a chorus of
