SHAVERTOWN

All of a sudden the balmy weather departed and the weekend really turned cold. It was a hurry time to gather in garden produce before frost nipped the vines, but for those all set for a football game, the nip in the air added zest and impetus to our team which is really top notch this year.

Now there are predictions of a rather rough winter. The old-timers relate how a heavy rain-fall will produce a heavy snow-fall and we sure had the rain.

Soon the hunters will be in the woods again and we are concerned about the deer who ambled into the upper garden often of an early morn. Particularly are we worried about one of our four legged friends who apparently suffered an injury last season. We are not sure whether he is getting about on three legs; the one limb is badly crippled. Nevertheless, we hope some nimrod leaves him to his stamping grounds for he appears quite adjusted to his plight.

Films and Indian artifacts will be shown at the Fire Hall Oct. 13, giving those interested in our early history a chance to learn more about the redmen who inhabited these parts. A good crowd is expected to take advantage of the opportunity.

For some reason, several lines were mixed in last week's column. What I originally said was that we hoped there would never be an end to the Annual Library Auction. It is not only popular with all the Back Mountain region but has become so famous that folks come from far and near. Who would wish to see it become a thing of the past? If the site should ever change, the Lehman Horse Show Grounds would undoubtedly be available. The millage referendum will not appear on the ballot in November although boards of three municipalities approved it. It just was not filed for a multitude of reasons.

The new magistrate's office will be located in the former home of Myrtle Major Rice, now the property of Granville Sowden and will be renovated to meet the requirements set by the court. As central a location for the three municipalities as possible was the main thought in mind and Dallas Shopping Center is in the Borough. Business spots are scarce along this sector of highway.

It was with deep sorrow that we learned of the untimely death of Ralph Heister and the memory of his tireless efforts to resolve the water problems in

Robert Sorber now at sea

Hospital Corpsman Third Class Robert W. Sorber, USN, son of Erna B. Sorber, Dallas, and husband of the former Alice F. Piszcek, Plymouth, is serving aboard the amphibious transport USS Mountrail in the Mediterranean.

The ship recently visited the French port of Cannes. While there members of the crew volunteered to fight a large fire which was causing damage near the city. They also helped clear the grounds and paint a new home for the handicapped in Cannes.

this sector are still fresh in the minds of many of our citizens.

Although he risked his very job to come to the aid of those affected, his conscience dictated that he must serve as a dedicated and good public official. The State Health Department has lost one of its finest men.

Susan Banks is beginning her third and last year at Laukenau Hospital. She will leave upon graduation to become a Navy nurse.

Mrs. William Price is a patient in General Hospital. Former Shavertown residents, the Prices now reside at High Point Acres.

Little Sammy Soltis is home again after having been a patient at Nesbitt Hospital.

Jack Eck will leave for the service Oct. 15, not September as quoted.

As the fall comes and nights grow longer Gladys Martz will have memories of a very pleasant visit to think about. Her granddaughter Jill, who resides in Bethlehem, is now back in classes after spending a delightful vacation in Shavertown with her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Voelker and family will leave for Philadelphia this weekend to attend the wedding of their son, Robert, to Shirley Oberholtzer of that city. Bob is now employed by Shell Chemical Co. in New York City. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University. Our best wishes go with him.

Her many friend are praying for a successful convalescence for Frances Williams, who is a patient in General Hospital. The former Frances Patton, she is the sister of Harriet Stahl.

Christian Education Sunday will be held this week at Shavertown Methodist Church. Bibles will be given to all third graders.

The Senior MYF will hold a Bake Sale Saturday at both the Acme and A&P markets. Your support will be deeply appreciated.

Sweet Valley firemen present Doc Williams

Sweet Valley Volunteer Fire Company is presenting the "Doc Williams Show" Oct. 1 at the Lake-Lehman high school.

The two-hour family type show, featuring country music, starts at 8 p.m. Doc himself is a singer, guitarist, and master showman, internationally famous. He and his company have made countless recordings and have appeared on TV.

Chickie Williams, singer of ballads and folk music will appear in person. Jack Jackson and Curt Dillie with their electric guitars, and the Border Riders Band will be heard.

Smoky Pleacher, with a long history of successful appearances in slapstick comedy, country style, will be featured. Smokey has appeared with such famous "Grand Old Opry" stars as Lonzo and Oscar, Hawkshaw Hawkins, and Ernest Tubbs, and has starred in leading clubs at Las Vegas, Lake Tahoe, Reno, Hollywood, and San Francisco.

There will be two one-act comedies, country music concert, and a variety show, all suitable for family entertainment. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Sweet Valley Fire Company.

The Back Mountain YWCA will begin its fall schedule of classes Tuesday, Sept. 30. Classes will be held each Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at Trinity United Presbyterian Church, Dallas. A playschool will be held for preschoolers.

Classes being offered for an eight week session are: folk guitar with Terry Young; needlecraft with Mrs. Loren Samsel; ceramics with Mrs. William James; mosaic glass floor removed from plant

Luzerne Construction Co., Forty Fort, has the contract for removing 28,000 square feet of heavy maple flooring from the former Linear plant. The flooring was originally laid for reception of machinery in the Bloomsburg Mill, Dallas branch, 20 years ago as a resilient base, rather than concrete, was needed for textile operations.

Dungeys host organ society

The Back Mountain Organ Society held a Corn and Wiener Roast recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dungey, Lake Street, Dallas.

Attending the affair was the couple's son, Robert, who was home on a furlough from the Navy.

A business meeting was held and arrangements were made for the remaining months of the year.

Attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Al Slatky, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swanson, Sophie Layeau, Robert Dungey, Ethel Gelseichter and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dungey.

Dymond Hollow rummage sale

Dymond Hollow Methodist Church WSCS will hold its fall rummage sale Thursday, Oct. 16, and Friday, Oct. 17, in the Nativity Parish Hall in Tunkhannock.

Hours on Thursday are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. On both days there will also be a bake sale. The roast beef dinner prepared by women of Dymond Hollow Church is scheduled for Nov. 8 in the church social rooms. More information will presently be available.

R. Borneo in Vietnam

Marine Pfc. Robert J. Borneo, son of Ruth R. Allen, Shavertown, participated in Operation Durham Peak in the Republic of Vietnam.

Operation Durham Peak was conducted by the First Marine Division in the Que Son Mountain area 21 miles south of Danang.

team teaching contemplated in planned Wilkes complex

Wilkes College building program envisages a 400 seat lecture hall which will make possible an innovation in instruction, the team teaching program.

Since loss of Conyngham Hall by fire in December of last year, classroom space has become a vital question. Team teaching has been contemplated for some time by faculty and administration, says academic dean Dr. Francis J. Michelini.

Dr. Eugene S. Farley, Wilkes president, says the new facilities will be designed to give maximum flexibility for exploration of new teaching formats.

Actually, one form of team teaching has been in progress at Wilkes for some time in the Temple University -Wilkes College graduate program in general education for teachers. It involves three faculty members from different disciplines present in the same class who give different perspectives in the same subject area being taught.

A Black Studies seminar offered this year at Wilkes will cover the history, sociology and literature of this particular area of American culture. No single instructor is competent in these three areas, hence, team teaching. Three faculty members have cooperated in developing and teaching this seminar.

The proposed team teaching program embraces a team of faculty members plus graduates and senior under-graduates as discussion leaders. This faculty team will conduct instruction before a lecture class of 300-400 students in the planned auditorium. Immediately following these classes, students will break up into smaller groups in seminar rooms for discussion.

"This, of course is a radical departure from the team teaching as we understand it," said Dr. Michelini, "and as far as I know, no other college has experimented with instruction in this manner. Until the proposed facilities become available, Wilkes will not be able to explore the potential of new teaching techniques that increasing student population make essential."

Dr. Michelini went on to explain that in all probability, each seminar room will be linked to a central control room on a closed circuit television system where the professor in charge would be available to answer specific questions.

Recent additions to the physical plant of Wilkes have all been part of a long-range development effort, and long before the fire destroyed Conyngham Hall, plans were being formulated for the construction of urgently-needed additional classroom space. In addition to the team teaching program the college is forced to provide space for an expanded program in mathematics and nursing and to permit the introduction of a four-year degree program in electrical and materials engineering.

The proposed new facility will include a 400-seat lecture hall, classrooms, laboratories, special equipment rooms, environmental science laboratories with a special observatory facility as well as fine arts gallery and studio classrooms; facilities for experimental psychology, student faculty counseling among other innovations in the educational field.
