Red Cross holds water safety class

Joseph Shaughnessy, chairman of the water safety program, Wyoming Valley Chapter, American Red Cross, has announced that water safety instructors whose authorization expired Dec. 31, 1969, and who did not complete the ten-hour retraining in the revised water safety program by the date, may be reauthorized by successfully completing part two of the water safety instructor course which will be conducted at King's College swimming pool. A training course in part one of water safety instruction began Feb. 16 at the Wyoming Seminary swimming pool, Market and North Sprague Avenue, Kingston. Subsequent sessions will be held at the same pool Feb. 18, Feb. 23, Feb. 25 and March 2. Holders of current Senior Life Saving Certificates are eligible to take the free training course.
