GROUP SELECTS LEADERS

A primary reason for tonight's meeting is to focus on workable goals for future activities of the organization. A list of six goals will be presented to the public who will be asked to rate them in order of importance. These objectives which are representative of problems expressed by parents, teachers and citizens of the school district are: (a) teachers salary raise (b) more extensive busing, including children within the mile and a half limit (c) more elementary school teachers or aides to relieve the excessively large classes in the lower grades (d) renovations to the elementary schools (e) continuing education incentives for teachers (f) curriculum coordination through the appointment of department heads and—or a committee.

The committee expresses the wish that all citizens of the Back Mountain area interested in better education attend this meeting.

Beginning with this issue, The Dallas Post will bring to its readers the informative and interesting art of antiques, written by Pennsylvania's own Joel Sater. The exclusive series by Mr. Sater, who just recently returned from shows in Great Britain, begins this week with a lesson in appraising your own antiques.

SHAVERTOWN

By Mrs. Joseph Allen

Plans are in the making or an entire Youth Worship Service June 14, Student Recognition Sunday, at the Shavertown United Methodist Church. Plan to attend church that Sunday and see the youth in action.

It is good to look around and so many college students coming home for the summer after completing a year of hard work at school. Now these same students are looking for summer work so they can continue their studies.

So often we hear adults complaining that these young people don't want to work—yet there are a lot of employers who will not hire these students who really want and need to work to earn money. As soon as the employer learns that the prospective employee must return to his or her studies in the fall, the employer refuses to hire this ambitious student! How can they earn their way if no one hires them? Let's give these young people a chance. Don't forget to be at the Dallas Intermediate School May 22 to donate your blood to the blood bank. The blood you bank today, may save your life tomorrow.
