

radio club is chartered

A charter was recently granted to the Galaxy Citizens Band Radio Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania, club president Richard Zemanik has announced.

Presently the club is comprised of over 20 charter members, many of whom reside in the Back Mountain area. These members include James Fry, Kenneth Hunter, James Brongo, and Edward Starbuck, all of Dallas; Fay Williams, Harveys Lake; Harold Lyons Jr., Bunker Hill.

Currently the club is planning to monitor a radio channel solely to aid motorists in distress or to aid in giving directions during a general emergency.

Although no test is required by the Federal Communications Commission to obtain a license, Mr. Zemanik points out that very strict rules have been set up by F.C.C. for private radio operation. Licenses are issued for a five-year period.

no male rec. class tonight

The adult male recreation class usually held each Thursday at the Dallas High School will not be held tonight because of the senior class dance also scheduled.

The recreation class will resume next week.

Undaunted by Saturday's near freezing temperatures and early morning snow flurries, these Penn State students and faculty members scraped away old paint from the Maple Grove

Methodist Church, Sweet Valley, in preparation for the paint job they'll be undertaking there this Saturday.

PSU students paint local church

The Maple Grove Methodist Church, Sweet Valley, will sparkle with unaccustomed brightness after members of Penn State's Circle K Club finish their task there this weekend. Welding wire brushes and paint brushes, the Lehman campus students have undertaken the rather formidable job of scraping and painting the rural church.

Sponsored by the Dallas Kiwanis Club, the Circle K Club is a campus and community service organization. Its current project—painting the church—is being underwritten by funds from the club's treasury. Paint, supplies, and incidentals will cost the group approximately $150, club treasurer Larry Hannis estimates, with all of the necessary monies to be earned by various fund raising activities.

Approximately 13 students began scraping the Sweet Valley church following classes Friday afternoon, with work beginning again at 8 a.m. the following morning. Unseasonably cold temperatures and snow flurries made work difficult but not impossible, and by quitting time at 5 p.m., virtually all of the structure had been prepared for painting. The camaraderie between the hard-working students and faculty members was only slightly marred by a portable radio's broadcast of the Nittany Lions' defeat by Syracuse, 24-7.

This Saturday, the real work begins. (Originally scheduled to begin Friday afternoon, the painting was re-scheduled to permit Circle K members to pick apples for the cider sale they will be sponsoring next week. Freshly pressed cider will, incidentally, be available for sale Saturday at the Maple Grove Church!). Eighteen gallons of white paint have been purchased, and students have bought and borrowed enough paint brushes to tackle the job en masse. They hope to complete the painting this weekend as mid-term exams begin next week.

Expressing the same modesty which characterizes Circle K Club members, club president John Zelones suggests simple that he "hopes the paint job is a significant help to the congregation." He continues, "We're happy to have an opportunity to become involved in service to the community in which our campus is located."

visitors at Hess home

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hess, Carverton Road, Trucksville, were Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hess and children Betty and Jeffrey Michael of Allentown, Pa. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry White, Jeannie and Kenny, of Binghamton, N.Y.

The occasion for the gathering was the baptism Sunday morning of Jeffrey Michael Hess at the Dorrance-ton United Methodist Church. The Rev. Arthur B. Mayo officiated.

trailer permits sought in Twp.

No opposition was expressed against a request made by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fritsky to place a trailer on their property on Sutton Creek Road. Newlyweds, the Fritskys wished to put up a trailer there for "three or four years" before building a residence.

In a decision later in the meeting, board granted a permit—to be renewed May 1, 1971. The Fritskys will be notified of the board's action.

Arthur Dale, superintendent of Fern Knoll Cemetery, Midland Drive, asked to be allowed to place a trailer on cemetery grounds. The trailer would be used as a combination office and residence, he said.

Opposition to Mr. Dale's request was given by the business manager of the McHenry Estate, which has property adjoining the cemetery. The manager said the only objection was the placement of the trailer, which he felt was too "close to our lines."

Chairman Frederick Sallada inquired of Mr. Dale if the trailer site could be farther away from the McHenry lines. Mr. Dale replied that it could, but the planned site was nearer the cemetery gates and more accessible to the public. Mr. Dale was advised that the board would give him notice of their decision.

career day at Dallas Jr. High will discuss many vocations

John F. Rosser, principal of the Dallas Junior High School, announces that Wednesday, Oct. 28 will be devoted to "Career Day" in observance of National Vocational Guidance Week.

The theme of the program for that day will be "It's Your Future—Prepare For It." The theme emphasizes a basic American freedom—the freedom to select one's occupation. In the final analysis, the individual must take the initiative for selecting a career area. Finding one's place in the world of work, however, is becoming more difficult as the pressures of our complex civilization increase. It is hoped that by having events such as "Career Day" the students will start to think positively about their futures.

The program will begin in the morning with a keynote address by Robert S. Parker, Public Relations Director of the Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce. Following his talk, the students in Grades 8 and 9 will go to two separate sessions of their choice to hear adult consultants discuss specific occupational areas. The students in Grade 7 will attend one occupational session. Thirty leaders from the business world, industry, education, and the military service will serve as job consultants. Later in the day films of a guidance-vocational nature will be shown to all students.

Gordon R. Schlier, guidance counselor, is responsible for the overall planning and arrangements. Frederick J. Case, assistant principal, is in charge of faculty assignments. Students will act as guides and introduce consultants to their respective groups. Mrs. Kay Wright, Mrs. Verna Wismer, and Mrs. Jane Hackling, office secretaries, have assisted with the registrations, student assignments, and the correspondence needed to prepare this program.
