19-year olds must have own coverage

Parents whose dependent children will have reached their 19th birthday by Dec. 31, were reminded today by Ralph S. Smith, president, Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania, that arrangements should be made now to insure continued coverage for these persons, beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

"Under existing Blue Cross and Blue Shield family agreements," Mr. Smith said, "parents may include their dependent children until the last day of the year in which they attain their 19th birthday. Since

C. P. Smith named as rural job chief

Fred Peters, Bureau of Employment Security Manager, announces the appointment of Charles P. Smith as representative of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service in the rural areas of the Back Mountain Community. The area from Orange to Sweet Valley is encompassed in this new assignment.

The purpose of this service is to acquaint farm owners, business establishments, and social and church authorities with the employment bureau's varied services.

These services include detailed information to both employers and job seekers about the job opportunities and training openings available to the unskilled, unemployed, or underemployed. Training openings specifically for the unskilled low income families exist now in occupations such as television service repairs, oil burner heating installation repairs, and electrical appliance repairs.

For details, a phone call to the Wilkes-Barre State Employment Office, 825-7511, Extension 486, will assure a personal visit to job applicants or employers.

buy candy to buy books

The determined little fund raisers of Dallas Elementary School are at it again!

Last year, members of grades 3 and 4 astounded everyone by selling over 900 pies to help stock their very modest school library with books. This year, the eager beavers will be selling quality candy—the sale starts today.

Delicious butter toffee, kettle-fresh katyids, luscious almonds 'n chocolate—these are but three of the dozen or more treats which the youngsters will be selling. Prices range from $.50 to $1.50, and with trick or treat time just around the corner, nearly everyone needs a healthy supply of confections for little ghosts and goblins.

As was true last year, the children themselves will benefit from the sale: Additional library books will be purchased with proceeds from the candy drive. The sale is being held under the auspices of the school PTA and Marlena Holly, head teacher.

and a team of three women executives, who joined the firm in May, have taken a strong stand on equal rights for women at all levels of business. Through advertising and press interviews, Compton's urges women to come in for job interviews and promises that their advancement in the company will be based strictly on ability.

"During these three days of orientation meetings, we will continue to demonstrate our conviction that women are vitally important in the management of this business," said Shirley Schmitz, vice president and general sales manager.

The F. E. Compton Company publishes Compton's Encyclopedia.

Other Compton women executives are Drusilla Young, national sales supervisor and Catherine H. W. McKenzie, director of educational sales services.
